tion, "Michigan Mirror," for it contained material touching on the tremendous value of a Grand Jury in its relation to good government.

The article referred to was built around a personal interview, between Gene Alleman, Executive, Secretary of the Michigan Press Association, and Senator Homer Ferguson, the latter famed for his handling of the Detroit Grand Jury several years ago: that Grand Jury, sou may recall, did much to clean up Detroit's municipal graft.

Senator Ferguson's interview pointed out that a Grand Jury senator service which the people who commit evils against the tax payers: a Grand Jury, by its very existence, can be a wholesome family wrong; and, perhaps as important as anything, a Grand Jury can aid in preventing the corruption of public officials by men and agencies outside of government itself.

The Ferguson Grand Jury proved its value to Detroit. Already the Carr-Sigler Grand Jury, now operating in Lansing, has proved its value by indicting and successfully prosecuting men both in and out of Michigan's State government, some of whom now languish in prison.

There is much, we believe, that the Carr-Sigler Grand Jury can yet do in Michigan's State government, some of whom now languish in prison.

Ahead of General George C. Marshall, U. S. Army Chief of Staff.
Schedule says that the war in the Pacific is complicated by the fact that 'we are ahead of schedule' and that this increases the difficulties of delivering adequate supplies.
What some civilians persistently overlook is that an Army or a Navy is no stronger than its supply line. Neither can deliver effective blows against the enemy until adequate supplies are available. It takes plasming and time to develop supply routes and bases. Until they are available, the fighting men cannot move forward.

The inevitable consequence of higher prices will be diminished buying. This will certainly check production: cause unopplypment, and dislocate the national economy. The more the civilian can buy for bis money, the greater the volume of employment.

WE THINK THAT THE NEXT CONGRESS SHOPLIN present to the people a Constitutional Amendment, limiting the Presidency to two terms. Mexico, backward in many ways, after suffering the dictatorship of Porfirio Diaz for Syvears, changed the tenure of office of/its Presidents from four years, with the right to run, for re-election/indicfinitely, to six gents, with no right ever to run again for that office.
