

Red Cross Home Nursing Course To Open Monday

In preparation for the Red Cross Home Nursing course "Six Lessons in the Care of the Sick," an instructor's course for registered nurses will be held at Pontiac General Hospital beginning Monday Oct. 2, and continuing on the following dates: Tuesday, Oct. 3; Thursday, Oct. 5; Monday, Oct. 9; Tuesday, Oct. 10 and Thursday, Oct. 12.

This course does not replace the 24-hour Standard Home Nursing Course but is presented in situations in which individuals do not have time for the standard course. The short course is of special interest to those from rural areas who have limited time to give to work outside their homes and who are faced with transportation problems.

The course which will be taught by the nurses now enrolled in the instructor's training course will embrace the bedside nursing procedures taken from the standard Home Nursing course and includes "When the patient goes to bed"; "How to keep the patient clean"; "The Giving of Food and Medicine"; "Simple Treatment Ordered by the Doctor"; and "Control of Communicable Diseases."

Classes for individuals will be limited to ten students each which is in accord with the "Training within industry" method of precision instruction. Students will practice until the instructor is assured that they have mastered all aspects of the procedure. A special Red Cross certificate is awarded to students satisfactorily completing the course.

In my own case I found the creation of a family council solved our problem; every Sunday, after dinner, we would meet for perhaps 15 minutes, discussing mutual problems, and we'd decide by majority vote, and abide in a nearly every case by this vote. "We in the United States may be the best informed nation on earth, but we certainly are not the wisest. We need to bring into the thoughts of youth some of the eternal values and originate beyond our earthly affairs, yet in reality provide the essential foundation and security for obtaining the good life."

Dr. Slutz was introduced by Roderick Robert D. Lynn, in charge of the day's program.

Dr. Slutz spoke during the afternoon before the high school assembly. There his topic was "The Job of Youth Today." That evening he was the guest speaker at a dinner meeting of the Y.M.C.A. directors where he talked on "Responsibility of Youth Organizations and Parents in This New Day."
