

Drayton-Kaufman Farce, "First Lady" Opens 3-Night Run At Greek Theater

Triple-cast in the Drayton-Kaufman farce "First Lady" 48 scenes, assistant instructors and instructors will offer performances at the Greek Theater on Lane Pine today, tomorrow and Saturday at 8:30 p.m. under the direction of Carl G. Womberger and Mrs. Thomas B. Anderson.

The play is said to have been founded on a real feud between Washington society parasites (Susan Kaichen, Betty Goldberg, Jane Wilcox, Phyllis Bartholomew, Cynthia Scott, and Jean McGregor) and a foreign countess (Nancy Chapel, Betty Goldberg and Nancy Keyes).

There are many familiar types, Emmy, the dull, but crafty Southern girl (Bobby Colman, Boris Chapman); Sophy, the perennial social secretary (Marjorie Barrett, Frances Mead, Donna Polczynski); and unemployed senate wives (Nancy Chapel, Elizabeth Boyne, Mary Ann Barrie, Elizabeth Hannen, Elaine Newhall, Marilyn Hannen, Nancy Keyes, Kit Scheffele, and Pat Sanderson). Others in the cast include Judy Loud, Jean Kiefer and Cynthia Scott (playing Elizabeth Gannett, a news columnist), and Austin Jones, Dave Ballentine and John Kice. A schedule of camp showings is being arranged for "First Lady," following the appearance at Cranbrook.

Patie Steyer is technical Director, Jeannot Barnes, Property Manager, Palmer Black in charge of lighting, and Annetta Bouton Womberger, the general technical adviser.

Ruth Mary Potter And Abbott Gibney Married Saturday

At a candle-light service at 8:30 o'clock Saturday evening, August fourth, at the Pine Crest church, Ruth Mary Potter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Potter of Northlawn, was united in marriage to Mr. Abbott Gibney, son of Mrs. Abbott Gibney of Dearborn, and Misses Worth Gibney of Greenwich, Conn. The Rev. H. Paul Sloan of Ferndale officiated.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her dress was of candle-light taffeta, fashioned with long sleeves, light-fitting bodice, and a very full skirt which extended into a train. The sweetheart neckline was finished in lace from her mother's wedding gown. Her finger-tip veil of illusion was caught by a tiny wreath of stephanotis, and she carried a shower bouquet of white gladioli and stephanotis. The bride's sister, Jean Alice Potter, was the maid of honor. She wore a gown of rose taffeta and net, with a bouffant skirt, and carried a bouquet of gladioli in pale tones. Matching flowers formed her corsage. The bridesmaid was Cary Case, and her gown was identical with that of the maid of honor but in a pale green shade. She carried a bouquet of gladioli in deep rose shades.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Potter chose a long gown of aqua crepe with a small matching hat, and her corsage was of pink shatterd carnations. Mrs. Gibney wore a gown of black and carried out the deep rose shades in her accessories. S/Srs. Arthur Rohatille, USA, of Grosse Pointe, acted as best man, and Robert L. Burton and John H. Boyer were the ushers. A small reception at the Potter home followed the wedding, after which the couple left to spend their honeymoon at Chippewa Lodge, the summer home of the bridegroom's grandmother, Mrs. A. O. Abbott.

"Having wonderful time! Wish you were here!"

At one time I never would have believed that I could enjoy working in a kitchen—but that was before 1941, when I had an all-electric kitchen installed. Pardon me if I bubble over about it, but it's so fine in every way. . . . Electric cookery gives uniform results that keep my performance high and food wastage low—and the automatic features let me attend to other work while the range attends to the cooking. I have a lot of help, too, from my mixer, juicer, percolator, toaster and other helpers. And after meals are over, the dishes don't stare me in the face. It's no bother at all to scrape them into the sink (yes, I have a garbage disposal) in the drain that grinds up scraps and washes them away. . . . they'll stack the empty plates, and let the dishwasher take care of them. I figure the dishwasher saves me a total of a day's work every month. My hands don't get in the water at all, and there's a world of difference in their appearance. Truly, I am having a wonderful time in my kitchen. I hear that all-electric kitchens will be available again to other lucky women before too long. I know they'll love 'em."

TURN ON THE ELECTRIC LIFE

What has been the greatest single factor in changing your way of living during the last fifteen years? . . . Almost certainly it has been electricity. Electricity has taken over to relieve homemakers from drudgery. . . . to increase comfort. . . . to provide a better way of life. Plan an turning on the electric life just as soon as appliances are again available. Kind cut what modern appliances can do for you. . . . Now they operate at what they cost. All the evidence indicates that the old-fashioned way is the wasteful way. . . . all those who love to see that the electric way is the better way.
