Red Wool Headband and Bag Accepted By School Crowd, Helps Buy Bonds

Smart high school girls "go in" for matching hats and bags. This head-bagging band (it's made on a bicycle clip) could hardly be called a hat, but the school crowd accepts it as one. The set is made from a tiny amount of red wool, dotted with tiny blue wool crosses. This is an excellent way to have smart accessories, to use remnants or scraps of fabric, and to save money for extra Victory Bonds.

Detroit Music Guild Plans Fine Concert

The second concert of the Tenth Season Subscription Series of the Detroit Music Guild, on Dec. 12, at the Music Hall, is the most important musical event yet sponsored by the group. The program will include "The Elves and the Shoemaker," puppet play based on the tale by the brothers Grimm; a Christmas story, "The Clean Hay," by Eric Kelley, and "Christmas Scene."

The puppets themselves are of interest. They are manipulated by the hands, over which the puppet heads, attached to a long sleeve
