a Masterpiece

As thoroughly American as apple pie—you will find its counterpart throughout Old New England. Obviously careful planning and magnificently executed detail are combined, to produce an architectural masterpiece.

Exterior treatment is, of course, typical—split fieldstone, clapboard and white painted brick. However, these materials have been used in such a superior fashion that the detail defies description.

From a panelled vestibule and hall with open stairwell, one enters the living room, 18° x 30°; the dining room; a panelled, restful library and the service hall: Off the latter and connected thereto is a lava-tory, breakfast room and pantry—and be-yond—a tiled kitchen.

There are four grand bedrooms- and by that we mean they will take full suites of furniture: three absolutely gorgeous bath-rooms: two servants rooms and tiled bath over the garage, and a-storage room. Closet space throughout is sufficient to please the most pernickety.

The basement provides a panelled games room, a laundry, boiler room and lavatory, but such a description doesn't suffice. Heat-ing and plumbing equipment are the very finest and meticulously maintained.

The plot comprises $1\frac{1}{2}$ acres, almost entirely underlaid with an underground sprinkler and landscaped beyond compare.

Such are the facts-but the excellence of it all can only be conveyed
