GIRL SCOUTS

Margaret Barney is in the interests of earning money for the Infantine Paralysis drive. Mrs. Stanley Ross, leader of Troop 7 at Pierce school, reports that last Friday noon these girls held a candy sale and earned about $18.50. Banners crowded around and the girls said they could have sold twice as much. All patrols participated.

Mrs. J. L. Conroy, leader of Troop 17, at Holy Name school, reports that these scouts have made the drive an individual matter and each girl earns her own money, taking care of children, and in other ways.

Troop 6 at Adams continues to serve cocoa to skaters at the school rink. The four patrol, dramatic, nature, home-making, and arts and crafts take turns, and there is much rivalry to see which can take the most money.

Troop 7 held a dance last Friday when Mrs. Ross taught them the square dance, "Life on the Ocean Wave."

and were the cries of satisfaction last Thursday afternoon when Troop 5 prepared a spaghetti dinner at the Community House.

The leaders association will hold its monthly meeting at the Community House, January 21 at 1:30.

LIONS CLUB SPEAKER

The Rev. Fr. David J. Duncan, of Holy Name parish, was the luncheon speaker at the Lions Club Wednesday. Father Duncan used the approved government constitution of American youth for peace-time training as his theme. He expressed a clear-cut opinion from an educator's point of view, that if it is deemed necessary after the war to do so, it should be sanctioned, but should the plan fall into a political setup, such as it has in the closely knit countries of Europe, it can lead to no possible good.

Much Interest Being Shown Here In Study of Dumbarton Oaks Proposals

Over 70 members and friends of the Birmingham League of Women Voters, eager to become informed about the Dumbarton Oaks proposals for world security, joined with interest in a panel discussion of this subject at the League's regular monthly meeting last Monday at the Community House.

Mrs. Philip Pretz, chairman of the Foreign Policy Committee, directed the opening gun of the League's campaign to support the Dumbarton Oaks proposals. Members of the League supported her with an explanation of what the proposals are, and how the proposed international machinery would work.

Mrs. Alan Loofbourrow, quoting Mrs. Kenneth Gibson of this city, said: "We as a nation are faced with two alternatives: (1) we join this organization, try to make it work and try to perfect it; or, (2) we drift back into isolationism and, inevitably, world chaos. Our job as individuals is to focus the attention of the American people on these alternatives."

"The idea that peace is something state is a deadly danger to our future," said Mrs. Harlan Brown, in her address on the explanation of the proposals. "The terrible dynamism of war now brings peace to be constructive."

Mrs. Loofbourrow pointed out that the salient difference between the League of Nations and the Dumbarton Oaks proposals is that these proposals have provisions for the enforcement of the decisions of the Council. "The League of Nations really never came into existence," said Mrs. Loofbourrow. "When the United States refused to join as originally proposed, the League was crippled from the very first. But even today the principles which stirred the League into being are far from dead. These principles are now embodied in the Dumbarton Oaks proposals."

Mrs. A. S. McCall gave a short history of the International Court of Justice and pointed out that even though adverse decisions had been rendered against some of the most powerful nations in the world, there had never been an appeal from the Court's decision. "International cooperation can succeed," said Mrs. McCall, "if we want it to succeed."

"The General Assembly of the Dumbarton Oaks proposals will be compared to preventive medicine while the Security Council may be likened to surgery," said Mrs. Paul Penfield. "The function of the General Assembly is to detect the symptoms of war and isolate them and stamp them out before it becomes a community epidemic."

Mrs. R. S. Plexico, Mrs. Charles Shain, Mrs. W. T. Kellogg, Mrs. Randolph Heiser and Mrs. R. E. Each, all members of the Foreign Policy committee of the League, gave explanations of the various sections of the proposals, while Mrs. W. A. P. John presented the views of the opposition press.

Mrs. Ralph Yonker, president of the League, pointed out that many people were just as full of hope for a bright new world in 1919 as they are now. "But there were not enough of us on the job, then," said Mrs. Yonker, "and a people's peace could not be had then. It must be different this time. This is our second chance. More and more people must be convinced that only by a sustained and enlightened public opinion constantly at work, can we hope to accomplish what we so miserably failed in before."

Materials and concrete help in setting up discussion groups may be had from the League office in the Municipal Building. Moderators for such discussion groups may also be had from the League office or the Baldwin Library.

Class of 1945

To be graduated this year from school college or university means that the graduate will face a very challenging world—a world such as will require much in ability, courage and character.

It seems to us, therefore, that this year's graduates deserve the utmost in encouragement and those assurances of staunch friendship which, long after the graduate has been handed his or her diploma, will be recalled with bracing satisfaction. The knowledge that there are friends who can be counted on, if need be, means much.

When your assurance is made vocal with a LaBelle gift it helps greatly to make yours an unforgettable expression of such friendship!
