"I'm making homes out of houses"
"It's a pleasure for a dealer to furnish a house with an all-electric kitchen—for it makes the house into a home. The electric kitchen cuts down the housewife's time in the kitchen . . . and gives a thrill to the work she does there. The electric range gives uniform results . . . provides automatic operation, cutting down the amount of attention necessary. Electric cookery is the modern way . . . convenient . . . clean . . . reliable. People have come to feel about it the way they do about electric refrigeration—that it is the only way. The electric dishwasher, too, has proved itself in thousands of homes as a time and labor saver. I've sold many and never had one returned. They normally save the housewife a total of about a day's work every month. . . . People are not so familiar with the operation of the garbage disposal unit in the sink drain. The convenience of throwing waste right into the sink and washing it away cannot be appreciated until used. And the modern housewife comes to feel the multiple assistance of all the smaller electric helpers—mixer, juicer, percolator, toaster and others. I can't think of any investment that goes farther toward making a house a real home than an electric kitchen."

THE ECCENTRIC'S Camera Corner
Including a pet in a picture of a child the human interest appeal is immeasurably increased.
You've probably noticed how often animals appear in photographs used for advertising purposes. There's a reason. Surveys show that people are interested most of all in children, next in dogs and other familiar animals, and third—believe it or not—in pretty girls. So you can double the interest in your snapshots if you include the family pet in some of your shots. More than that, your pictures will have added meaning if years to come for the son or daughter who is pictured with a favorite pet. Many a man of responsibility looks back fondly to his boyhood days and feels that he owes part of his mature wisdom and character to the pet that was once his closest pal. So don't overlook the family pet when you picture the children this summer. Juvenile and Stella will be grateful to you in years to come. And when you send along the next snapshots from the home front to those in the Services, be sure to include a picture of his or her favorite pet.
Today's illustration is a fine example of an informal portrait study aimed at being of all the charms in such boy and dog.
Notice that all its advantages from the photographic angle—the interesting compositional lines, the eye leading rays, the light
