SUNDAY DINNER Suggestions

SNAP BEANS are an outstanding vegetable favorite with qualities of taste, economy and nutrition which earn them an all-year-round place on American dinner tables. Technically, snap beans are the immature pods of numerous kinds of kidney-beans, and are called a variety of names, such as string-beans, stringless beans, French beans and pole beans. The two common types are green beans and yellow or "waxed" beans, and either of these vegetable favorites makes a tasty and nutritional addition to any dinner, says the A & P Service for Home-Makers.

Both green and wax beans are available canned, quick-frozen or fresh, with the latter more popular during this season of the year. Fresh beans are simple to prepare. Just wash thoroughly, break or cut off the ends, and cut each bean into sections of strips.

These beans, when cooked, usually come to the table as a plain vegetable, with a simple seasoning of salt and pepper. Many cooks prefer to vary this technique, however, and sprinkle a small amount of grated onion, chopped chives or chopped parsley over the beans for extra flavor during the last few minutes of cooking. Green beans can be cooked with mushrooms, or served with a topping of cheese or corn flakes. Wax beans often are cooked with a small piece of ham bacon or salt pork. Leftover beans make an excellent addition to a mixed salad, and popular related favorite being chilled green or wax beans topped with grated onion and fresh dressing.

For Sunday dinner, try fresh green beans with a main course of roast chicken and dressing, mashed potatoes, an apple salad, sliced peaches, and a beverage.

139 SOUTH WOODWARD

What does it take to run a baby?

Plenty—and plenty of electricity, too. A hungry young citizen needs food—lots of it—often. That food needs preparation—refrigeration—reheating.

Baby needs hot water—lots of it—often. So does his wardrobe. And because Mother worries about germs, she boils practically everything but Baby himself.

Clocks must be dependable when there's a baby in the house. Lights must go on—quick—when he cries out in his sleep. Rooms must be kept warm—the list is endless.

Today's mothers are luckier than those of 20 years ago. With electricity ready at all times—in any quantity—to help with the household chores, mothers have more time to enjoy their youngsters. Never before has electricity done so many tasks for so little cost. Actually, the average family today gets twice as much electricity for its money as it did 20 years ago. Your friends and neighbors in this company—and your own increased usage—helped make that possible.
