"Let's Get W. Coit Allee is Something Done!" to be commendation of the City's Cummings Street Park. He declared that since that particular park development and been given such a good start with a contribution of $3,000 from the Birmingham Rotary Club, that the city should come through immediately with money from its contingent fund to give the park the finishing touches.
"I'd like to see something really finished for once," he stated emphatically. "We've got a good start on the project, so why can't be completed in one operation?"
That attitude on the part of any governmental official is a healthy sign. It shows that whatever the problem may be, he believes action is the only course that will solve it.,
Hesitaney on the part of duly elected.

that whatever the problem may be, he best was action is the only course that will solve it in the only course that will solve it in the only course that will solve it in the only course that will solve in the continuous action on most problems. However, the continuous action on most problems are solved in the continuous action on most problems. However, the continuous action content of the continuous will infect the commanity of the committee will be more and more action concerning community affairs.

A definitely stated proposal soon will bring the city to its feet either to defend or attack the proposal. In the light of the arguments brought forth, the officials then can determine the necessity or advisability of proceeding with the original proposal.

But to hold back action for half-hearted reasons is only to offer to the citizenry a poor excuse for an administration which is supposed to have been elected to take the lead in solving and administration which all sovernmental bodies should adopt. Let's, have it in Birmingham, even if the rest of the nation remains apathetic.

Big Job for Governor James M. McGord, of Tennessee, urges the Southern States to put into effect vocational training programs in order to provide job opportunities for the farm laborers who will soon be displaced by perfection of the mechanical cotton picker and the sugar-cane harvester.

chanical cotton picker and the sugar-cane harvester.

The Governor calls attention to an economic peril which looms for millions of farm workers in the Southern States. Obviously, if mechanization comes to the cotton fields and to sugar-cane fields, the displacement of human labor will precipitate an economic crisis.

Well, we see where the chief subject for discussion at Birmingham's Eighth Annual discussion at Birmingham's Eighth Annual Community Institute is going to be about the atomic bomb. That's a fine subject; we hope those in attendance will learn as much about it as they already know of Einstein's Theory of Relativity. But, all joking aside, a discussion on the menace of the atomic bomb in a society that won't behave itself is worth position on.

Now that some of the scientists have fig-ured how to get to the moon, they are work-ing on the problem: "How to Get Back to Earth Again." Strange guys, aren't they?

made its appearance the problem pales into insignificance beside the greater task of determining how much whale-burger can be made from a whale.

In London recently menus offered customers the opportunity to try whale-burger steaks, which were made from an experimental consignment of ten tons of whale meat, brought from the Antarctic. Newspaper reports, which we do not guarantee, said that those who ate it claimed that it tasted like chopped steak without any flavor of fish. It seems that the meat was served in the form of chopped steak with sauce. We understand that there are hearty fixed caters who delight in hamburgers, considering them something of a gastronomical treat. By all means, if possible, they should try whale-burger, which, after all, should contain as much ham as a hamburger.

Our Fire
Policy

In refusing the Watts Electric & Mfg. Co., located on East Maple avenue, just outside the city limits, fire protection, Birmingham is merely carrying out as policy laid down years ago; the policy simply is this: Birmingham can service only Birmingham. That may sound harsh to those who live outside, and perhaps some progress whight be made to loosen up this rigid policy; but, in the final analysis, wherever, people own property or live they must depend upon the officials of the unit of government in which they want public service to provide such services through levying taxes enough to do so. In the cases here involved, Troy township is that unit.

Here's a New Year's wish to ED Kirbert, recently engaged to direct the Y.M.C.A. activities in Birmingham: "May the results of your year be found in the enthusiastic and inspired hearts and minds of our youth who, following your program, will have found it worthwhile; in their bodies, as the recreational programs you plan for them may be to their liking. And, last but not least, may the adults who support the "Y" program find it one of the best investments they can make."
