Army Men Talk to Relations Class

Major Dennis Cooper, formerly of the Reserve Intelligence Office of the Air Force in the Pacific, and Sgt. Johnnie Miller of the 5694 Parachute Infantry, presented an interesting talk to the members of the Ruth Shain International Relations class last Tuesday, Feb. 5.

Sgt. Miller was one of the 400 paratroopers who made the jump on Corregidor. This jump is considered to be the most difficult jump in parachute history.

Major Cooper made photograph records of his experiences and they are now being organized into illustrated lectures. Both men wear numerous citations for their bravery in the Pacific area.

THE RIGHT BOOKS -- Tools of Understanding!

Among the multitudes of books being published some deserve to be in your library for valuable re-reading, others deserve to be read once, others not at all. Thus, if your aim is to understand the issues of the day, it becomes imperative that you choose the right books. They, after all, are the tools of understanding!

We have books of all publishers. All titles cannot of course be kept in stock, though a goodly number are. But because ours has always been a personal book service we will as quickly as possible procure any desired title for you, and you may be assured we are always glad to consult with book-lovers who read for understanding's sake.
