

The Ranch Room Roundup

The fun at "The Ranch Room" is certainly keeping up to par, judging by the stampede whenever the doors are open. Saturday afternoon, when Barnum takes over, is no exception. Last Saturday your reporter saw Joe Ross, Herb Sreder, Ann Huntington, Sue Mason, Mary Bowen, Nancy Kendall, Nancy Gray, Judy Fermentier, Tom Maxwell, Bob Hardy, Howard Murray and Bob Gaudin dancing and playing cards. At the soda bar were

Rev. A. F. Runkel Is Speaker For Baptist Men's Club Banquet

More than one hundred members of the First Baptist Church assembled in the banquet hall at the church last Wednesday night for their monthly fellowship supper.

The supper was served by the Southfield group of the Woman's Union under the direction of Carol Griffin. In a brief business session the Board of Trustees was granted permission to increase the insurance coverage on the church building and contents.

Dr. Melvine W. Crump, pastor of the church, introduced the speaker, Rev. Runkel, who spoke on the subject "The Heart of the Church." The Rev. Runkel, who is a member of the church, said that a true church must have a library in its tower, an altar in the chancel and a laboratory or work-shop in its basement. In speaking about the library he emphasized the importance of a church having a comprehensive and efficient program of religious education, and at the altar the members must present themselves as a sacrifice, making a dedication of themselves to the Lord, and that of all this must result in a life of service in the name of Jesus Christ.

Nancy Morgan Marries At Lovely All-White Ceremony

The chancel of Christ Church Cranbrook, lighted with burning tapers in cathedral candleholders when Nancy Morgan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Morgan of Bryn Mawr drive, became the bride of Lieut. James E. Davies, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Davies of Glenhurst drive, at 8:30 in the evening of Saturday, Feb. 2. The Rev. Charles H. Gidigan read the ceremony before an altar decorated with vases of white stock and gladiolus, Gloriosa ferns and fan-shaped arrangements of stock and gladiolus stood at the foot of the chancel.

Given in marriage by her father, Nancy chose a snow white gown of satin for her wedding. A high collar and neckline featured a wide band of marquisette, edged in aleonca lace ruffles. The train was repeated at the wrists of the long fitted sleeves. A long circular court train fell from the full skirt and the bodice of the lovely dress was fitted. The fingertip veil of illusion was caught by the train. She carried a spray bouquet of gardenia and orchids.

Charming gowns with white lace and three-quarter length sleeves were worn by the maid-of-honor, Marion McCracken, and the bridesmaids, Barbara Morley, Jane Walcott, Peggy Lockett and H. Gidigan. E. Fields of Pleasant Ridge. They all wore perky pom-pom hats of white tulle. The maid-of-honor carried a bouquet of pale pink carnations and the bridesmaids carried white wine carnations.

Russell C. Davies was best man for his brother and Bob Rarey of Detroit, Richard A. Fisher, Max Brinkley, and Joseph Amatast of Ypsilanti, Mich., seated the guests. Receiving her guests at the reception in the Morgan home after the ceremony, the bride's mother Mrs. James E. Davies.

For her son's wedding Mrs. Davies chose sapphire blue crepe with a matching feather hat and a corsage of white camellias.

For the wedding trip to New York, Boston and Washington, D. C., Mrs. Davies wore a light green gabardine suit with a camel colored hat and brown accessories, a fur jacket and an orchid from her bridal bouquet.

When the couple return from their honeymoon they will live at Cherry Point, N. C., where Lieut. James E. Davies is stationed at the Marine base.

SELF-DIAGNOSIS IS DANGEROUS!

The real tragedy of many serious illnesses is the fact that they might have been averted if people did not attempt to diagnose the trouble themselves but had consulted a doctor in time. How often do people shrug off a sharp pang in the chest and perhaps a feeling of nausea or faintness. To the average person, these are symptoms of indigestion. But the doctor knows that so-called acute indigestion is in many cases often a symptom of heart disease. That is why getting your physician's opinion on your "indigestion" is a wise precaution.
