Mary Bronson Is Bride Of Edward Jeffe Potter, Jr.

An all-white wedding was chosen by Mary Bronson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Karl H. Bronson of the Art Centre, Detroit, and formerly of Birmingham. At noon on Saturday, in the Holy Rosary church of Detroit before the Rev. A. F. Quinn, she spoke her vows in marriage to Edward Jeffe Potter, Jr., son of Edward J. Potter of Milwaukee, Wis.

The bride was escorted up the aisle by her father. She wore a gown of sheer marquisette fashioned with a sweetheart neckline and long tight sleeves ending in points over the wrists. The light-tinting bodice and pleated were of rosepate lace and a panel of the same lace extended down the front of the full hooped skirt. She wore diamond lavalliere which was a gift of the groom. Her double-tiered veil of French illusion fell from a crown of rosepate lace and she carried a bouquet of gardenias and white orchids.

Maid-of-honor, Jane Bronson, and bridesmaids, Mildred Andrew of Syracuse, N. Y., and Barbara Glenn of Jangstown, N. Y., were gowned in white marquisette and they wore crowns of shattered red carnations in their hair and carried bouquets of the same flower.

Best man was John A. Mahler of Detroit, and seating the guests were Bruce Loring and Edward Rowles of Detroit, and William Hutchins and Harold D. Bught of Chicago.

A reception at the Wardell Sheraton followed the ceremony. Mrs. Bronson received her guests wearing a floor-length gown of sunset yellow crepe, a purple marine hat and a corsage of purple orchids.

The young couple will honeymoon at San Island, and on their return will make their home in Ann Arbor.

For traveling Mrs. Potter chose a beige suit of brown gaboridine, white accessories, and a white orchid corsage.
