THE BEAT OF YOUR HEART..

It is but little more dependable than Detroit Edison service.

That miraculous continuity of service, here and elsewhere, is due to endless research and experiment by engineers and executives of the electric industry. In that program of progress, which has continued through the years, and will continue through the years to come, The Detroit Edison Company has been a pioneer.

Once a single transformer served your home. That transformer was the transfer point, the vital connecting link, between the miles upon miles of power lines and the line that served you. When it failed the power was gone.

Engineers of The Detroit Edison Company conceived and developed the idea of connecting many of these transformers together in "banks," and now several of them must fail at the same time before you and your neighbors are deprived of power. That seldom happens.

That is only one of many things that have been done to insure the householder, the merchant and the manufacturer an uninterrupted supply of power adequate for all needs—those of the present and those of the future.

That was a Detroit Edison idea—a Detroit Edison FIRST.

That was an incident in the story of this company's contribution to the community of today.

It is indicative of some of the things that this company, as a citizen, can be expected to contribute to the community that is to be.

The Birmingham basketball season officially came to a close when Fenton defeated the Maples in the Regional Finals at Fensdale last Saturday night. The Maples wound up with a record of thirteen wins and six losses. The team had a foul-shooting average of .483, which is considered high for high school competition.

ZOELLIN STILL WINNING
A vault of 12 feet 4 inches in a recent triangular track meet, with Indiana, Iowa and Chicago competing, enabled Fred Zoellin, former Maple pole vaulter, to win first place for Indiana. Holder of the Birmingham record at 11 feet 6 inches, Fred is showing steady improvement and has put eight inches on his vault already this season. With the indoor season finally closing, we should see quite a bit from him in the outdoor meets.

On Honor Teams
With the basketball season drawing to a close, many statewide papers are picking their mythical all-state fives. Many Eastern Michigan League athletes are standing high on these fives. The Detroit Times picked Chuck Murray, Birmingham ace, on the second team and Dan Thomas of Port Huron on the third team. Those receiving honorable mention were Alexander and Hazely (Port Huron), Bollen and Hill (Hazel Park), Shaw (Mt. Clemens), and Hahn (Ferndale). On the Detroit Free Press selections only Alexander and Hazely of Port Huron received honorable mention.

Eleven Bell Games
With the weather outside continuing to have the spring atmosphere, Coach Hal Helmer will send his Birmingham baseball team outdoors for batting practice. The Maples have an 11-game schedule starting the latter part of April. Coach Helmer should present quite a team with nine returning lettermen.

BIG DANCE SATURDAY
A circus setting will be the theme of the "Big Top," the first dance sponsored by the Birmingham Youth Council, to be given at the Community House March 23. Bill Rustie is general chairman and the following head their respective committees: Jan Walker, decorations; Bob Brungaber, ticket sales; and Leticia Katter, publicity. The Ranch Room as well as the dance floor will be used.

Baldwin Year Book Sales Are Growing

Under the direction of Howard Love and his assistants, Ronnie Rinder, Grace Mack, John Anderson and Dottie Davis, the sales staff received 729 orders for the yearbook from high school students and faculty.
