No Additional Gas House Heating Equipment Can Be Connected Until After Next Winter!

In order to insure adequate service to its present customers, this company finds it necessary to decline to supply natural gas to additional customers for house-heating or other space-heating purposes. Therefore, only customers whose gas heating equipment already was in process of installation on May 10 will be connected after that date.

areas, where gas from the Southwest may be stored in warmer months to help meet the peak demands of winter. Though definite progress is being made, this large undertaking cannot be completed in time to be of benefit during the coming winter.

This announcement is made with great regret, but under existing conditions there is no alternative. Since war-time restrictions were lifted, the use of natural gas has been growing very rapidly. Total use of natural gas for all purposes in the Consumers Power Company service area has practically doubled since 1942. Gas for heating is being requested not only for almost every new home, but also for a large number of homes which formerly used other fuels.

This conversion of Michigan fields into storage areas requires the construction of a 150-mile pipe-line and a large gas pumping station, and the drilling of many additional wells in the fields, before they may be made useful for this purpose. The materials necessary to commence this work were expected to be available this spring, but now it appears that they cannot be obtained before next fall.

The Michigan natural gas fields, which supply a large part of the gas distributed by Consumers Power Company, are being exhausted rapidly and, due to the shortage of materials necessary to enlarge pipe-line capacity, the supply of gas from Texas and Kansas cannot now be further increased to relieve the situation.

A year ago the Company was forced to discontinue connecting additional gas space-heating customers in Lansing and other cities in that area, which are at present entirely dependent on the declining Michigan fields. Now it must reluctantly impose the same restriction in all other areas it serves.

The Company is doing everything it can to improve the situation as soon as possible. It is proceeding with plans to convert two Michigan natural gas fields into storage

This limitation applies only to new installations. Customers who already are using gas for house-heating or other space-heating purposes will be supplied as usual.

We assure our customers, present and prospective, that every effort is being made to increase the available supply of natural gas and that this limitation will be lifted as soon as possible—But, it won't be for at least a year.
