NEWS FOR THE VETERAN

USE QUONSET HUTS

A familiar sight to millions of fighting men, Quonset huts will soon appear at various Veterans Administration hospitals and institutions to help solve the critical space shortage. The huts will be used for occupational therapy hospitals and for office space at Regional Offices.

READ BOOK ON CEILING

Veterans who have to lie flat on their backs in bed can now read a book on the ceiling. Special projectors make this feat possible in Veterans Administration Hospitals in Michigan, Ohio, and Kentucky. Talking machines play recordings of favorite books for patients who can not see and special editions in Braille are available for the blind. Into the eye plastic wards go picture books and magazines for veterans with eye injuries.

FACTS TO REMEMBER

In writing to the Veterans Administration, veterans must be sure to include all pertinent information for prompt service. Full name and address and service serial number are "musts" for all communications; insurance policy or claim numbers should also be included when appropriate.

TO GET DISCHARGE

From Glenview, Ill., Naval Air Station comes the following news about a Birmingham youth: Paul Gralshay, Dunwoody, Ill., USNR, son of Mrs. Winifred Chandler, 2139 Yorkshire, Birmingham, Mich., has accumulated 27 1/2 points for a discharge under the Navy point system. He has been transferred from the Naval Air Station, Glenview, Ill., to the Separation Center, Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill., for processing and ultimate return to civilian status. Dunn entered the Navy in September, 1942, and took his training at Great Lakes; Memphis, Tenn.; Jacksonville, Fla.; and Green Cove Springs, Fla. He served at Jacksonville and Great Lakes in the supply disbursing department. He was a student at Baldwin High School, Birmingham, Mich., and was a student at the University of Michigan in 1942. After his return he enters the Naval Reserve. He plans to return to college.
