Lecture Clinic To Be Feature Of Garden Club Meeting Monday

Members of the Birmingham branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association are promised another treat at the next regular meeting of the club, to be held Monday afternoon, Nov. 11, at the Community House.

The "treat" will be a lecture clinic on the "Horticultural Approach to Flower Arrangement," which will follow the business meeting.

Mrs. Allmayer would like to have members bring materials for arranging. These can be flowers, evergreens, berry branches, fruit, gourds, or other garden materials. The tea table arrangements will be taken care of by Mrs. John, and Mrs. Robert Grindley and Mrs. Charles C. Otto will preside at the tea table.

Mrs. Lewis is entertaining her committee and Mrs. Fred Spenser, general social chairman, at her home this morning.

Big Beaver High School Carnival This Week-End

The Big Beaver High School carnival this year promises to be more hilarious than ever before. On Friday and Saturday, Nov. 8 and 9, the school, together with the PTA, will conduct its affair with class and class spirit. The carnival that goes into the rivaling of a state fair.

Ernest Herald is in charge of the games, while the musical circus and western rodeo are under the direction of Mrs. Phyllis Tucker. Marionettes will carry on with the aid of Edna Smith and the school arts and crafts girls. All the settings are home and school made.

The high school play has been written and will be directed by the principal, Glenn Wooster, with Coach Tusky assisting him with the stunts and frecks.

The following classes will also perform: Miss Keeler's 6th grade with a play and choral reading; Mrs. Butts' 5th grade with a radio show; Mrs. Patten's group with a skit; Mrs. Baum's and Mrs. Bessie's 4th grade with a radio vision show called "Mumbo and the Grateful Lion."

On the evening's program are Mrs. Johnson's 3rd graders with Indian dances and songs; Mrs. Rutledge's 2nd grade will present a good fairy story, while Mrs. Gilbert's first grade will bring Red Riding Hood out of hiding. The second grade will present a play called "Out in the Country." Mrs. Musselman's kindergarten will entertain with songs and dramatizations from childhood tales.

Nancy Brown Names Attendants; Is Feted At Numerous Parties

Nancy Brown, whose marriage to Fred Sanders will take place Nov. 30 at North Woodward Congregational Church in Detroit, has announced her attendants.

Barbara Brown, Nancy's sister, will be her maid-of-honor, and Ann Hartman of Detroit, "Sandy's" cousin, and Nancy Sanders, his sister, will be bridesmaids.

Although the list of others has not been completed, "Sandy" has asked his brother, John, to be his best man.

In Nancy's honor, Mrs. Charles H. Welch and her daughter, Mrs. David Mott, were hostesses recently at a shower and tea given in the Welch residence on Safford road, and Mrs. Thatcher Rea of Detroit is entertaining for Nancy today.

Tomorrow night Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Gilbreath and their son-in-law and daughter, the Robert Skippers, will welcome the family and friends of the young couple at a buffet supper in the Skippers' new home here in Birmingham.

Another party in Nancy's honor will be the one hosted by Mrs. T. Grover Ames of Detroit Nov. 15. The affair will be a table top shower and Nancy's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Henry S. Brown of Edison avenue, Detroit, were hosts to the families and close friends Sunday.

Fred is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Sanders of Epping Lane, who will give the rehearsal dinner Nov. 29 at the Bloomfield Hills Country Club.

Following the ceremony Saturday, a reception will be held at the Detroit Athletic Club.

James Peabody Weds Wilma Ward in Afternoon Service

The First Presbyterian Church was the scene of the wedding ceremony last Saturday afternoon when James Peabody, son of Mrs. Kathryn Ward, daughter of Mrs. Thomas J. Ward of Frank street and the late Mr. Ward, and James B. Peabody, son of Mrs. Stanley Peabody of Quanton road and the late Mr. Peabody.

The Rev. W. Glen Harris performed the service before a setting of palms, white chrysanthemums and candles.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Henry J. Ward, and assisted by the bride chose as her wedding gown white silk marquisette which was made with a high neck, tight-fitting bodice, three-quarter-length sleeves, and a high collar with white silk braid. Her finger-ring veil of illusion fell from a beaded tiara, and she carried a bouquet of white roses centered with an orchid.

Best man was the groom's brother, Stanley Peabody of Fenton, Mich., and seating the guests were Robert Peabody of Birmingham, another brother of the groom, and Clem. Hoover of Birmingham.

Following the ceremony a reception for close friends and relatives was held at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Ward chose for her daughter's marriage a street-length gown of brown, made with a V neckline, gold belt and gold trim around the push-up sleeves. She wore a brown hat topped with a gold plume, gold gloves, and a corsage of yellow roses.

Mrs. Peabody wore a red-gown dress, made with long sleeves, a V neckline, gird accessories, fur, and a corsage of white gardenias.

When the new Mrs. Peabody left with her husband for their motor trip to Florida where they will spend a few weeks, she was wearing a three-piece aqua suit, brown accessories, and the orchid from her bride's corsage.

When they return they will make their home on Henrietta street.

Charles Watts Wacker is also studying at Northwestern University. He is a senior in the school of Liberal Arts, and a Sigma Chi fraternity member. He is the son of the C. W. Wackers of Safford road.

POULTRY PROFITS

with an ELECTRIC BROODER

CHICKS get off to a flying start when you use an electric brooder. It's safer . . . easier . . . more economical. Heat is thermostatically controlled—evenly distributed to prevent chicks from dangerous crowding. Air is circulated scientifically to keep litter dry and healthful. There's no soot, no smoke, no worry about fire or temperature variations.

Dozens of durable, reliable electric brooders are on the market now—scaled to fit every farmer's budget. All of them can cut down on slow growth, poor feathering and a high death rate. Ask your Edison Farm Service Advisor to show you an electric brooder in operation on a nearby farm—let you talk costs-and-profits to yourself. You'll find that electric brooding pays for itself!
