13-Year-Old Pianist, Carol Rosenberger, to Appear at National Music Convention

Carol Rosenberger, youthful Birmingham pianist of only 13 years, will be started during the week-long biennial convention of the National Federation of Music Clubs, to be held in Detroit next week.

All endowed member of the Junior Division of the Detroit Tuesday Musicale, Carol has been chosen to be one of two junior representatives to appear in piano concert from the Detroit area.

One thousand musicians, representing every section of the United States, will participate in the convention, gathering at the Book-Cadillac and Statler hotel, as well as the Detroit Music Hall, to hear the foremost of their members perform.

Youngest Musician

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Rosenberger of Bloomfield Village, Carol will open the youth concert at the afternoon session of Youth Day, Saturday, April 26, to be held in the Crystal Ballroom of the Book-Cadillac at 3 p. m. Carol will be the youngest musician appearing on the particular program which will also feature another pianist, a cellist and a violinist.

In addition to having a great enthusiasm for music and having followed this interest intensely for nine of her 13 years, Carol has a variety of other interests typical of her age.

She is blonde and blue-eyed and loves to wear pastel sweaters and skirts. Often she will dress in jeans for a youthful jaunt or picnic with one of her many friends, all of whom take her talents very seriously.

Likes to Swim

Her favorite sport is swimming, and she loves school where she is doing honor work in the eighth grade at Kingswood School, Cranbrook, but in addition to these activities, Carol has learned to find time to practice two or three hours a day, which probably accounts for the recognition which has begun to come to her.

For several years she has been the pupil of Edward Bredshill of the Detroit Art Center Music School, but during his present leave of absence she is studying with Kathj Andy.

Carol has straggled and appeared in her own piano recitals since she was eight, and has appeared in Edward Bredshill's concerto programs at the Detroit Institute of Art for several years. Though it has taken some extra time and energy to prepare the Schubert and Chopin numbers, she will play at the Youth Concert, she nevertheless is planning to present her usual spring recital at the Institute of Art May 21.

The "Impromptu" in E Flat Major, Op. 90, No. 2 from Schubert and the "Variations Brillantes," in B Flat Major, are the concert pieces she has elected to play.

In order that as many youthful musical enthusiasts as possible might be given a chance to attend, single student admission tickets will be available.

Tuesday night found the Club 19-30 with serious things on their minds. A business meeting was held and Ginny Walsh, program chairman for April, presided.

Plans are being formulated to elect officers, although up until now there has never been an executive head; however, due to the growth and expansion of activities a definite need has been established. Representatives of our group are going to be sent to observe similar clubs, such as the 20-up club of Royal Oak, with thoughts of improvement as their objective.

Amy Wilds aroused a few people by inviting them to a party. When the group arrived for the "supposed party," clad in jeans and sweaters, as was requested, paint brushes and buckets of paint were handed them.

As you enter the craft and courtroom you will find them coated with a new layer of paint. They look quite well done; in fact, we're keeping the workers' names secret—'til the union.
