

Mayflower Church Scene of Blodgett-Kraus Rites

The Mayflower Congregational Church of Detroit was the scene Saturday evening of the double wedding of Jean Elizabeth Kraus and Burton Olsen Blodgett. The Rev. Robert Burtt officiated at the candlelit ceremony.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Kraus of Shirley drive, wore a gown of white satin with an off-the-shoulder net yoke which was trimmed with folds of white satin. Her long tulle veil was edged with Chantilly lace, and was caught in place by clusters of orange blossoms. She carried a white prayer book and gardenias.

Her maid of honor, Miss Joyce DeVries, wore orchid dotted Swiss.

The bridesmaid, Mrs. Willard Brown and Miss Virginia Molin wore gowns of green dotted Swiss. All wore flowers in their hair and carried yellow roses.

... concerning your Gift to the Bride

THE supreme happiness, deservedly hers on her Wedding Day, demands more than usual thoughtfulness on the part of those who mark the occasion with their Gifts.

Your Gift, if chosen for such attributes as beauty, usefulness and distinctively fine quality—together with a ne'er-grow-old character—will certainly add to her joy, and be remembered with genuine satisfaction long after the immediate occasion.

That is the kind of Gift to the Bride one finds at LaBelles, where attention to beautiful wrapping plays its part too—for your Gift is wedding-wrapped so beautifully that it becomes successful from the moment it is glimpsed.

In Any Event

LABELLES is a Shop devoted to beautiful things. This far-above-the-average, well balanced Shop provides a gift-service so up-to-the-minute, varied and complete that a growing number of patrons seem to have adopted the maxim: "In any event, send a LaBelle gift."

For weddings, anniversaries, birthdays, Christmas and many another special day there are particularly appropriate gifts. Moreover, for those special and personal events in the lives of all of us there are beautiful LaBelle gifts which say "Thanks a Million" when someone has bestowed a favor, for instance, or has entertained in their home or cottage.

In any event your thoughtfulness and your gratefulness become eloquent indeed when silently expressed in this way.
