Fulgamy is fought by the Church itself, although from time to time it is revealed that "out-law" Saints, particularly in the remote areas, do take unto themselves more than one wife; when such cases are found, prosecution

The Salt Lake Valley lies between ranges of the Rocky Mountains. The scenery in the area is of course, grand to behold; good fishing and hunting are within easy motoring distance to the city folks of Salt Lake City and Ogden. Utah has produced some important silver and copper mines; the largest open pit copper mine in the world is situated at Bingham, 20 miles from Salt Lake City. The operation, which has been going on for 50 years, eventually will move an entire mountain via dynamic, electric shovels, and the smelter.

Strange to say, though, the Saints, as a group, never did get into the mineral resources of Utah, and thus never strengthened their growing financial position from the resources within the bosom of Mother Earth.

A Travel Suggestion
While I enjoyed this trip by airplane, I have this suggestion to make to you who may contemplate a trip into that area: If you have never been there before, first go by automobile or railroad, for these types of travel bring you into closer relationship with the grandeur of the Rocky Mountain region; then, later, if you go a second time, try the air—for from the vantage point of a bird's perspective, you will glimpse from on high something of the tumultuous up-throwing of Nature... up-throwing and convolutions that rival in color and pattern the best that mankind has been able to place in the art galleries of the world.

7 Birmingham Boys Leave for 'Y' Camp

Tom Kaiser, Billy Lawson, Bob Waterland, Jim and Jack Bernhart, Larry Yates and John Hombart, Jr. were among the boys who boarded the charter bus for Camp Obivesa yesterday in front of the local 'Y' office.

The boys will be in camp through August 15 on Fish Lake north of the best that mankind has been able to place in the art galleries of the world.

year-old Sue Clemons of 613 Bird street.
Boy winners were Donald Anderson, 235 E. Lincoln avenue, and Francis Garlitz, 1759 Henrietta.

Youngest champion of the day proved to be 6-year-old Karen Tuassy, 1487 Pierce street. She established the best time on the course for all three-wheeled cycles under 11 years.) Bill Dimes, 1746 Henrietta, Walter Griskey, 911 Smith street and Ralph Miller, 947 Fairfax; (and for boys under 14 years) Francis Garlitz, 1759 Henrietta, and Allen Aulph, 698 Bennaville.

The last race of the afternoon was for boys over 14 years of age. Roy Aulph, brother of Allen, and Pete Landino, 668 Smith street, won first and second places, respectively, in this event. All other bicycle riders who attended this meet were given copies of a booklet on bicycle safety rules and regulations, Whitney pointed out.

Safety Books Distributed
The second round of bicycle competition called for a foot dash, bicycle mount, speed start, complete U-turn and 30-yard sprint, all in the same event. Given championship prizes from the resources within the bosom of Mother Earth.

brake to a stop but was unsuccessful before he hit a mound of dirt at the field's edge which took him to the plane over on its back, pinning it in the cockpit.

Milton Bess, Jr., one of the first persons who reached the scene, helped pull Salterelli from the plane.

"It's a wonder the ship did not explode into flames," young Bess observed later that afternoon.

According to Capt. James D. McCaulay, Selfridge Field Air Reserve Flying Safety Officer who arrived at the scene about 4 p. m., an investigation will be made into the actual cause of the accident.

A ground crew from Selfridge's Fleet Air Wing, which was alerted, appeared shortly after the accident to dismantle the plane and take it back to Mt. Clemens.

Cruelty

posed to be ridden," explained Mrs. Ferguson.
Phonics Detroit Newspaper
The police officers of this municipality making stable owners responsible. Mrs. Ferguson to such an extent that she had to call the Detroit newspaper and told them the story. Photographers came to her home to take pictures of Sandra, and an article was written about the cause of the mare's condition.

As a result of these pictures and the police officers' action, Mrs. Ferguson has written to Mrs. Ferguson and numerous telephone calls came in all of which commiserated with her. One opinion: Something should be done to the stable owner, and another: "Why should the mare's owner prosecute?"

Mrs. Ferguson said that she has many local phone calls telling her about other situations of cruelty to animals. One story she related was that of a little dog in a city not far from Birmingham.

City of Lost Dogs
"One day a man, identified as the garbage collector, was called and hit the little dog over the head with a board, knocking out one of its eyes. I asked him why he didn't like dogs. Soon after that another dog, in the same area, was hit and killed. Nothing was done, for no one wanted to take the time.

"I was notified," Mrs. Ferguson continued, "one day while I was out for a walk, that a dog had been hit and collapsed at my feet. I inquired around the neighborhood to find out who had done it."

"When I had located her, I told her that she had enough to worry about without feeding and taking care of a dog, I asked her if I might take it and get a veterinarian's care. The woman agreed."

"It was not very long after the dog had been returned to its owner in good condition that I received a call. The dog had not remained at its home. So I thought that I would take it and find a good home for it."

Many Other Stories
In the meantime, the dog had been returned to its owner in good condition that I received a call. The dog had not remained at its home. So I thought that I would take it and find a good home for it.

"It was just such an occasion about two years ago in mid-winter when someone threw his dog out of the window of the car and I hit it there to freeze and starve. Everyone in the neighborhood tried to get the dog to come to him and offered him to eat little bits of food. But the puppy was so frightened that he wouldn't let anyone near him.

"A little girl in the neighborhood, who always has stray dogs around, saw this little fellow. Every night after school she would wait patiently for the dog to come to her. It wasn't too long before he trusted the little girl enough to go home with her. Now the dog is a favorite around the neighborhood of E. Long Lake, where the patient little girl lives."

Several people from Bloomfield Hills and Birmingham have called Mrs. Ferguson to say that they will do all they can to start some sort of movement so that this inhuman treatment will stop.

Will Investigate
"Something has got to be done," Mrs. Ferguson said. "Already the stable owner where Sandra had been boarded has called her owner and threatened her, so that she won't cause him any trouble. Also he informed her that she hadn't heard the last from him."

The Anti-Cruelty Association is going to investigate the situation, but according to Mrs. Ferguson, this association is sadly in need of funds and she doesn't know how she can do much. She has already received several donations of money and she doesn't know how she can do much. She has already received several donations of money and she doesn't know how she can do much.

Maybe some organization will be able to do something about the situation which seems to be out of hand, she said.

"Goodness knows," Mrs. Ferguson added, "the occasion certainly requires some sort of protective law. Perhaps out of all this chaos, some good will occur."

Policemen

have increased to the point where another man is needed, he said.
In pointing out the need for an extra squad car, Hackett said that of the present two cars, only one really can be assigned to police traffic patrolling.

"We have so many calls that require investigation—such things as dog bites, lost children, bank and funeral details, and many others—that one car is practically kept busy responding to these things," he said. "What saves only one car to patrol the streets. The department really should have two cars on patrol with one dedicating its time to making investigations," he said.

Same As 1930
It was discovered that in 1930 Birmingham also operated with only 18 members of the police department.

"During those days we didn't have such things as police cars, radio equipment," Hackett explained. "Practically every beat we had to be covered by foot. We didn't have such a large residential area either. Today the radio and automobile equipment have made it easier for the same number of officers to patrol a correspondingly larger area."

"However, Birmingham and its traffic problems have grown a little beyond what can normally be expected in the average community of this size. That's why we need more men."

Swimming Champs to Be Determined at Pool Tonight

Tonight at 8 p. m. the annual city swimming championships will be held at the Barrum School Pool and on Wednesday, August 13, at the same time and location the annual playground water party will take place. Both are sponsored by the Birmingham Recreation Board.

Tonight's program will begin with two events for the children who have been attending the beginning swimming classes. The first event consists of breath-holding and in the second the children will kite-glide for distance.

Other events for the older boys and girls will be a medley relay, 100-yard free style relay, 25-yard free style race, 25-yard back stroke contest, 25-yard breast stroke event, underwater swim for distance, boy and girls mixed relays and individual spring board diving.

The last event of the evening will be a pool treasure hunt in which coins will be scattered over the bottom of the pool for the benefit of the contestants.

The water pageant scheduled for next Wednesday is in charge of Jacques Beck. There will be a 25¢ admission that will be collected at the pool.

All program revenue is used to help defray the cost of the summer recreational program.

interrupt the construction of a bus garage, Mallerand said.
"There are two sides to the question which can only be settled by the courts," he added. "Our city attorney, Forbes H. Call, in his opinion on which I am plaintiff, I have been suggested the defendant's case. The court will ultimately decide who is right should such a case appear before it."

The motor vehicle increase from 5,500 to 7,000 during 1946 was a 27 per cent jump.
