Thomas L. Hibbard Promoted Named Director of Styling for Ford

Thomas L. Hibbard, of Waterloo, well known custom car designer, was appointed new director of styling for the Ford Motor Company, Harold T. Youngren, vice-president and director of engineering, last announced.

Youngren described Hibbard's appointment as another move to provide Ford with a styling department second to none.

"We believe that under the direction of Hibbard and George W. Walker, styling consultant, we will provide the public with cars possessing the eye-appeal, comfort and utility they have reason to demand in their first real postwar models," Youngren said.

Born in Chicago in 1892, Hibbard has been active as an automobile designer since early boyhood. While attending high school in Cleveland, he was employed by the Rubay Company, custom body builders, as a designer of special bodies for Packard, White, Locomobile and other quality cars of the period.

Later he organized LeBaron, Inc., designers of custom-made cars, assisted by Raymond Dietrich and Ralph S. Roberts.

Later he organized the firm of Hibbard and Darrin, custom car designers with offices in Paris, which constructed its own body plant for the production of aluminum bodies, and served as agent for the Belgian-built Minerva.

After a period with Cadillac as chief stylist, Hibbard joined Ford in 1940 as special project engineer to develop a large armored car, a six-wheeled vehicle known as the GQ model, predecessor of the famed M-8 light armored car. Hibbard lives with his wife and son, Thomas L., Jr., at 600 Waterloo.

'Y' Hockey Team Loses 1st Game

After three periods of fast hard play, the Birmingham Barons, newly organized 'Y' hockey team, dropped their initial contest to the Berkley Bears by the score of two to one, Cranbrook rink last Friday afternoon.

Berkley was led by Bob Nelson, who tallied all of Berkley's goals scored in each of the three periods. Birmingham did not break into the scoring column until early in the third period when Dean McAllister knocked in a rebound shot.

Three minutes later Birmingham scored again when Clay Joyce connected on another rebound to tie the score at two-til.

Nelson then went on to score three more goals, two of them unassisted to clinch the game for Berkley. Rain and soft ice hampered the passing attack of both teams.

In two previous practice games, the Barons defeated a group of Purdue veterans, 4-2, and came up with a 4-1 tie with another veteran team from Washington.

The starting lineup: Berkley Goodwin, J. G. Davenport, Harold B. Hartshorn, Keith Houff, C. R. D. Sorenson McAllister, D. C. Nelson, Kerr McBride, J. R. W. Baker Spares were Tom Behm, George Campbell, George Clark, Clay Joyce, Art Lake, Mugs Rouse, Pete Whitelaw, Jack Zinner and Scott Clark.

Oakland Ave.

sidewalk between Worth and Adams, and construction of a new Adams.

Edgerts suggested that the school district's share should be figured at slightly more than 30 per cent of the total cost with the city and private property owners sharing the balance.

Commissioner John Martin, in voicing his opinions, declared speaking as a citizen who lives within the shadow of Adams School, it is picayunish to quibble over funds which may save my children's lives. But I understand that years ago it was recommended to the school board then to acquire some vacant property east of Adams and south of Buckingham and to construct an overpass so the school children could get to that playground.

"Speaking now as a citizen of the school district, I believe the present project should be borne by the school district because of the shortsightedness of that school board years ago."

Commissioner John Martz pointed out that dead-end Oakland could create a peculiar traffic problem inasmuch as Oakland was the only east-west through street north of East Maple.

"Will it be proper that the abutters along Worth, Madison and Ridgeland avenues to share in the cost of this project, when it appears to me that all they would be obtaining would be detriment," he questioned.

Commissioner Ralph Main stated: "It would be like taking an aspirin for a headache when what is really needed is medical treatment. Seems to me there is a need for a better playground."

der any circumstances to go to fetch it with me. They stood close by with beaming eyes when the good things which they missed were unspiced. We never have eaten our fill so again for that evening. We were present on your magnanimous present to the Rotarians from Czechoslovakia, the Hagin Rotary Club writes in to tell of their appreciation of the food package.

"This parcel has a great moral value for us... We were so very grateful to a great country, democratic and free, similar to the one in which we lived up to 1938. Now we know again what freedom means and what democracy is and we are sure to settle down forever in liberty and democracy."

"More Thank You Notes" The Rotarians' Rotary Club, too, expressed thanks for the food gift sent them through Rotary International and A.P.A. and the Rotary Club Pizer, in Czechoslovakia, sent a letter thanking Birmingham Rotarians for the gift.

"Please accept our sincere thanks," president Emil Wollner wrote. "The various items of its contents made us a great pleasure. However, we appreciate most of all your friendly thought."

Way back in August, Halna Rowkardowska, of Warsaw, Poland, wrote her first letter to the Rotary. She is the daughter of the late governor of the Rotary club in Warsaw, who, she told, was murdered by Germans after 18 months of imprisonment in Berlin. In her care are three children, her own son and a niece and nephew.

"Several Letters a Week" I hasten to send you my heartfelt thanks," she writes. "Your kind remembrance and help in my critical circumstances is very valuable."

Over a period of months she has written similar letters to the Rotary secretary for subsequent gift boxes of food sent to her through CARE.

The above letters are only a few that have come in. From all parts of Europe, several times a week, more are received.

The Rotarians' program, with an aim to doing their part in overseas relief, is well launched, and will carry on in the same manner—sending out box after box until it is established that stricken European countries no longer need food.

This last should take only a few days, however. Finally after they are completed, the units must be inspected by both the City and the FPIA officials and approved. Only then will they be ready for anyone to move into," he stated.

In explanation of the holdup in planning installation, Carrier said that the three plumbers are all the contractor can obtain to work on the project.

"Wow! Guess as to Completion" These men can only work a five-day week because the union requires that the contractor overtime for any hours worked on Saturday and Sunday and he is not in a position to do that.

Donald C. Eckert, City Manager, said that he would no longer venture to guess when the bids would be completed, that he could not guarantee when the work would be done, but said that they were doing everything in their power to finish up at least the Cranbrook huts as quickly as possible.
