Elmers-Latimer Wedding Rites Read in South

The Methodist Church in Shaw, Mississippi, was the scene of the Christmastide wedding Saturday, Dec. 20, at which Sarah May Latimer, 25, daughter of the late Hugh Latimers of Shaw, became the bride of William Frederick Elmers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Elmers of Devonshire road, Birmingham.

The bride chose for her all-white wedding a satin gown on traditional lines, with a sweetheart neckline, fitted bodice and long, full skirt. Her three-quarter length veil was gathered to a white band, fitted behind her head.

The groom's sister, Mrs. Donald Golden of Birmingham, was among the numerous attendants. Their gowns were of white jersey, fashioned with draped bodices, centered with gardenias and of the waist with braided gold belts. On their heads were gold caps, and they carried bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums and gladioli.

Best man for the groom was his brother, Robert, and John Kelly and Edgar Conroy, both of Pleasant Ridge, and George Bowen of Ferndale, were among the ushers.

Former Resident Becomes Bride in Ann Arbor Rites

At a 4 p. m. service Saturday in the Chapel of the Women's League in Ann Arbor, Kathleen Mead Seeley became the bride of Moreau Crosby Hunt.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Melvin Raymond Mead of Ann Arbor formerly of Birmingham, and the late Mr. Mead, while Moreau is the son of Mrs. Woolsey Welles Hunt of Ann Arbor and the late Mr. Hunt of Alpena.

Kathleen went down the aisle of the candle-lit, flower decked chapel on the arm of her brother, William Henry Mead, who gave her in marriage, The Rev. Warner Puryth of Grosse Pointe was the officiating minister.

The bride wore a soft gold wool costume suit, brown feather-trimmed hat and auburn accessories. Her flowers were brown orchids.

Her two sisters, Mrs. Richard Booth Wallace of Birmingham, as matron-of-honor, and Margaret Mae Mead, as maid-of-honor, chose identical wool dresses. Mrs. Wallace wore moss green, while Margaret's dress was orchid. Both wore matching feathers in their hair and carried bouquets of violets.

Woolsey Welles Hunt Jr. was his brother's best man, while Howard Holmes Jr. of Chelsea, and James Kistner of LaGrange, Ill., served as ushers.

A reception in the Mary Henderson room of the League followed the ceremony.

Mrs. Mead chose for her daughter's wedding a black silk dress with the rest of the bride's costume in crystal fringe and wore a rose ostrich tip hat. Mrs. Hunt chose a gown of royal blue and wore a hat of the same shade. Both mothers wore orchids.
