 White woolen pea jacket with gold buttons—perfect with almost every Southern-bound or Summer costume.

WHITE TOPS EVERYTHING

EVEN if you haven't planned a jacket to some winter haven, you'll soon find yourself giving thought to a warm weather wardrobe. Naturally, New York's designers are a jump ahead of you and your plans with such ideas as the versatile white pea jacket that is "right" for vacationing, and a blessing throughout the summer. Freedom—but not too much—in fashion this year. Here it is seen in the sleeves newly fared at the wrist and the boy's yet trim line emphasizing the slim hipline.

Of course, all white is always good—and this year it's extra-special. From Florida to California, and any resort spot in-between, there'll be sold white in everything from coats trimmed with gold buttons like the one above, to scanty bathing suits, slacks and play-dresses. And there are new colors which will delight you this year. "Sunburn," a golden brown, is seen in travel suits as well as in beach dresses. "Tude" cotton in a summer dance dress with hand-painted hem border. "Bark brown" and "Tapa blue" prints for playclothes and evening. . . . and shades of yellow—sundowner, apricot and primrose.

Cranbrook Players End Summer Theatre Work

An adaptation of Aileen Leslie's bright and gay radio comedy, "A Date with Judy," will be one of the two plays to be presented by the Cranbrook Summer Theatre as it brings to a close its sixth season.

"Judy," with her usual ability of creating tense situations for everyone, has a splendid opportunity as she goes off on a contest winning spree with some of her friends.

The leading role is played by Alice Shaw and Suzanne Greene, with Sheila Frankel and Lee Di Mare as "Barbara" and Dolly Millbrandt and Phyllis Sloan as "Mitzi." Members of her family are played by Don Ross, Louise Jackson, Cynthia Heideman and Tom Hawley as her little brother.

Others in the cast are Jerry Noff, Judy Kallet, Kit Scheffelo, Mary Haladay, Margaret Vos, Norma Lee Kass, Rhoda Smiley, Suzanne Mason and Vicki Schlawer. "Ooogie," the boy friend, is played by Tom Eddy.

The second production, "This Side of Heaven," features a long-time favorite in Birmingham, Ted Mansfield, with Liz Boyne and Connie Grigg in supporting roles.

The plot is woven around what naturally happens when a handsome man inadvertently wanders into an exclusive boarding school for girls.

Some of the other girls, who make life interesting but somewhat complicated for Ted are Judy Pardee, Tally Card, Sue Pomeroy, Carolyn Kaplin, Carolyn Danek, Joyce Woolfenden, Cynthia Crighten, Jean Brown, Janet Mills and Rachelle Levin.

The fussy school secretary is played by Mark Baker and Ruth Mills, with Marianne Goldberg and Margie Smith in the role of the headmistress.

Male support for Ted in his dilemma is offered by John Martin, Austin Jones, Martin Weger, Tom Kerastas, John Yessayan and John Ganley.

"A Date With Judy," will be presented Monday and Tuesday evenings, August 4 and 5, while Thursday and Friday will see "This Side of Heaven." Both plays will be presented in the Greek Theatre on the Cranbrook estate, or, in case of rain, in the Cranbrook gymnasium.

IT'S SACK-RILEGE

It's sack-rile that so many cotton sacks are going to waste when they can be transformed into such beautiful articles of wear and household utility. The dress worn by Miss Lena Lala, Ann Howard of near Memphis, Tenn., and the covering for the telephone stool on which she sits, were both created from ordinary cotton bags.

California Girl Becomes Bride of John Kelso Ormond

A wedding of interest to Birmingham residents took place in North Hollywood, Calif., on July 29, when Jeanne Marie Zieske became the bride of John Kelso Ormond, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kelso Ormond, Sr., of North Woodward avenue, Birmingham. The double-ring ceremony was read by the Rev. Strickland in the St. Matthew's Lutheran Church. The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. McReynolds, was given in marriage by her uncle, Carl Edwards, formerly of Columbus, Ohio. Her cousin, Mrs. William O'Connor, was matron of honor. Robert Sears of Alhambra, Calif., was best man. A reception was held immediately after the ceremony at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Edwards of North Hollywood. The couple will make their home in East Los Angeles, Calif.

An electronic beacon, invisible to the human eye but detectable by radar-equipped ships, has been perfected as a possible substitute for the time-honored lighthouse light.
