

Wylie E. Groves Announces Current Operating Budget of B'ham School System

Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of articles which the Post-Herald is presenting which discuss the present financial condition of the Birmingham Public Schools. Each member of the Board of Education will write one of the articles. This week Wylie E. Groves, treasurer of the board, discusses where the schools obtain their funds and how they are expended.

Two of the important questions which should be of interest to every tax-paying elector in the School District of the City of Birmingham are: where do the schools get their income? How is this income expended?

The major source of income in this school district comes from property tax. The total property tax collected within the 15-mill limitation plus the five mills voted by the people amounts to $448,000.

How to Oil Roads Thru Assessments Being Worked Out

Determined to take the lead in providing Birmingham with as good streets as possible rather than wait for their piecemeal development by residents who see the necessity, the city commission Monday evening instructed City Attorney Forbes S. Hassall to ascertain the means by which the city may create special assessment districts for an overall improvement program.

One is an amendment to the city charter which would permit the city to conduct a systematic road oiling program to be guaranteed for a certain number of years, after which the district could be reassessed for the same project.

Under the present plan means that many times improved property owners have to stand the cost for oiling the road in front of improved lots because the owners of the latter will not participate in the program.
