Junior Varsity Uses Old Football Play to Win Game, 7-0

Using an old football standby, the Cranbrook junior varsity football eleven employed a "Status of Liberty" play in the third period to defeat Buch High School at Centerville Monday afternoon.

The 7-0 game shifted back and forth between the two teams until a Cranbrook backfield man, Rufus Beardsley, went over for the six points. Maynard Smith plunged over for the extra point.

Acting Cranbrook captain was Fred Novy.

Cranbrook plays a return game with Bush on Oct. 27 at Cranbrook.

Next varsity game is with Fernside next Monday, Oct. 13.

If cups and saucers are your weakness, as they are mine, you'll be unable to resist the French and English bone china cups and saucers now available at Foli-Saver's Cupboard, 331 N. Woodward. You can select these "one of a kind" aids to hospitality in tea, demi-tasse or miniature sizes that are just too lovely for words. Then there are racks designed especially to hold them in mahogany or twisted brass. And the antique china cups—particularly the old Haviland—are pieces you'll treasure.

The season opens! As opera and ballet usher in the autumn season you're going to think about new formal for all the "openings" you plan to attend. And you'll find just your dress at Marguery, Inc., 250 N. Woodward. The materials this fall are nothing short of elegant to match the ultra-ultra styles—tulle, moire, satins, and velvets enough to make Cinderella envious. You'll love the new ballet length gowns with drop shoulders and buckram petticoats. These lovely gowns are priced from $25.

If you want to have pure luxury these cool fall evenings, (and who doesn't?) just think about Chatham Lamsdown blankets from Quinn's Inc., Bowers at Hunter Blvd. They come in blue, green, yellow, peach, and white in double and twin bed sizes and are also available in Bassinette and full crib sizes. After dreaming over these lush blankets, ask Mr. Quinn to show you some of the decorator-type lamps that have been drastically reduced for clearance. There are "plaster" lamps with parchment shades and hand carved wooden lamps in statuettes heights.

You fortunate gals who know how to sew and enjoy making your own clothes are going to have a field day this week at Mulholland's, 233 N. Woodward. The store has a brand new stock of the famous Botany woolsens, that are 100 per cent virgin wool, sponged and pre-shrunk. Reasonably priced from $3.50 to $3.75 a yard, Botany woolsens come in lovely shades of soft green, dark red, royal blue, grey, purple, fall browns, beige, and fuchsia. I particularly like the Botany all wool challis that comes in yellow and pale blue at only $2.50 a yard.

No matter what anyone says to the contrary, I find that meat and food prices in general are still spiraling, and above so immediate signs of receding. Therefore I'm willing to take the advice of F. & J. Market, Woodward Ave. at 1st Mile Rd., that this is a good time to purchase canned goods in case lots at a discount. Tomatoes and corn are going to be scarce, I understand, as the current pack is hardly enough to go around. While you're about it, see F. & J. about getting part of a corn fed steer for storage in your locker. You won't regret it.

It's fireplace time at Brass Unlimited. Unless you have already done so, pay a visit to this unusual establishment and discover the complete stock of solid brass fireplace fixtures. And ask Mr. Umstead to tell you how he is equipped to pick up your old fireplace fixtures (or brass lamps) and re-finish them, just like new. The process includes a thorough cleaning, burnishing, and coating with the hardest type of lacquer known. Remember, Brass Unlimited is open every day except Monday, from noon until 7:00 p. m.

It's time to think about replenishing the children's undergarments—and the place to do it is the Colonial Shop, Adams Rd. at Woodward. Here at Colonial Shop, Interknit undergarments that fit perfectly and have extra threads at the point of strain. Whether you choose vests and panties, briefs, or snuglies you'll find them warm and pretty and all guaranteed not to pull out at the seams. For infants the shop has Speedo easy action garments with the buttonless neck—no need to change any time of day or night.

Now that we are going to have needless days and endless days, there will be more need than ever to supplement our diet with vitamins, particularly before snow flies again. Otto's Pharmacy, 141 E. Maple, carries the complete Wheatamin line of the vitamins you want: cod liver oil, A and D vitamin concentrate; halibut oil capsules; and vitamin syrup for growing children. Otto's Pharmacy also has Wheatamin Tablets that contain all the vitamins and minerals you need to have a clear skin, lustrous hair, and that general feeling of well being you enjoy so much.

Over-Confident, Maple Reserves Lose to Pontiac

By Jim McCall

The Birmingham reserve squad with a 14-12 lead was confident of victory until the last three minutes of play when Pontiac pounded across the Maroon drive twice to make the score 25-14 for the Chiefs' last week on their field. The Chiefs' first tally came in the first quarter when Spaulditch plunged over from the five-yard line; he made good the conversion by a placekick making the score 7-0.

The Chiefs roared back taking to the air, Jack Barnes flipping a ten-yard pass to Bob Updyke who ran 25 yards for a marker.

Maple Lead at Half
Pontiac's aerial attack was halted temporarily when John Kallier intercepted Martinez's pass and sprinted 85 yards for six points. Spaulditch again converted by a placekick giving the Maples a 14-7 lead. Tony Martinez plowed 17 yards around the Birmingham left end to make the score at the half 14-12.

The second half was an even battle until the last minute of play when Martinez again scored on an end around run. A few plays later Harris Jackson's pass was blocked and intercepted, setting up Pontiac's fourth tie to the goal. Jack Barnes carried the ball over and made his own conversion, for the final score of Pontiac 25—Birmingham 14.

Congress Sponsors SCF 'Bundle Day'

To provide for Europe's war ravaged children, Baldwin students will collect clothing for Bundle Day, October 17, under sponsorship of the Student Congress.

All clothing will be placed in containers in home rooms. There is no limitation on the type of clothing; it may be babies', children's, or adults', but it must be in good condition. A prize is being offered to the homeroom with the largest collection.

At the end of the period allotted to the drive, the contributions will be sent to Mrs. Rudolf E. Bach, chairman of the Birmingham branch of the Sore the Children Federation.

With the help of daily broadcasts over the newly installed public address system, the Congress service committee will carry on the campaign for this project.
