Reception Saturday for Mr. and Mrs. Garfield

Miss Lois Sies, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sies of Gary, Ind., became the bride of Robert L. Garfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Garfield on Saturday, Sept. 6. The ceremony was performed before an altar decorated with white gladioli and candelabra, in St. John's Lutheran Church. The Rev. G. H. Naumann officiated.

Miss Sies was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white satin, fashioned with a sweetheart neckline. The gown was made with the long torso effect, which was scalloped below the waistline, and had long sleeves. The skirt ended in a short train.

HEIRLOOM JEWEL

Her fingertip veil was held in place by a band of white satin and seed pearls. Her only jewelry was an amethyst pendant, a family heirloom which was presented to her by the groom. She carried an arm bouquet of white roses.

Miss Mildred Pearson of Chicago was maid of honor, wearing a gown of white satin, patterned like that of the bride. She carried a bouquet of white and blue mums, and a crown of blue mums in her hair.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. Robert Johnson of Chicago, sister of the groom, and Mrs. Melvin Evick of Niles, Mich., cousin of the bride wore gowns of ice blue satin. Their bouquets were of wine and blue mums, with the same flowers in their hair.

James Garfield was his brother's best man, William Garfield and Parke Huffman of Detroit also attended the groom. The guests were seated by Donald Garfield and Alan Garfield, both of Birmingham and Donald Sies of LaPorte, Ind.

Mrs. Lucille Becker of Chicago was at the organ and Mrs. Roy Schwinckendorf of LaPorte, the bride's cousin, sang several selections. The bride's mother wore an afternoon dress of brown, with a yellow corsage. Mrs. Garfield chose a street length dress in blue, and a corsage of white flowers.

The bride selected a brown tweed suit with brown accessories and a purple orchid for her going-away costume. They left for Washington, D. C., after the reception, at which there were 125 present.

The young people will reside in Ann Arbor, where Mr. Garfield will complete his studies in the University of Michigan medical school.

Mr. and Mrs. Garfield and family have returned from Gary, and are planning a reception for their son and daughter-in-law. It will be held Saturday afternoon in the Community House from 3 to 6 o'clock.

Mrs. Schafer Announces Children's Art Classes

Mrs. Paul Schafer, known in the circles of modern art as Virginia VanTassel, her maiden name, will re-open her local art classes on Saturday, Oct. 4, when a group of beginners will meet in the Community House class room.

This group, which is just learning the rudiments of art, will work in pencil, pastels and water color. They will be taught, through working methods, the value of line in a drawing or painting, the technique of color and blending, and the importance of shadow in a picture.

The second class will meet on Wednesday, Oct. 8, after regular school hours. These youngsters, "Brush Holders, Inc.", began their bid for fame last summer, and revealed some outstanding talent in their midst. During the summer months they met frequently with Mrs. Schafer at her home studio and for field trips. They visited many spots in this vicinity noted for their beauty, and worked at the scene. Some of these pictures were completed at the scene, while others were roughed in to be finished at a later date. They will be working in oils, and promise to bring out some fine examples of their work and talent.

On Thursday a high school group will meet with Mrs. Schafer, and like the Brush Holders, will work in her studio. They have chosen "The Daughters Club," as their name, which does not truthfully describe the quality of their work.

Mrs. Schafer is the granddaughter of the late Andrew B. Van Tassel, who until his death about ten years ago was one of the very well-known artists of the East. She has won considerable recognition for her work, both in the creative field and in the line of passing on knowledge and guidance to younger artists.
