Taylor-Starr Vows Read At Holy Name Nuptials

Phyllis Ann Starr exchanged vows with F. Roder Taylor at a nuptial mass in Holy Name Church at the informal ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Seymour Starr, Bloomfield Hills, and the groom is the son of Mrs. J. Darby Taylor of Birmingham, and the late Mr. Taylor.

The Rev. Joseph Kress officiated at the informal ceremony.

Miss Starr, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a sheer navy wool suit and a white orchid. Her hat was a natural straw with navy veiling.

Mrs. Bernard Powell was her sister's only attendant. For the wedding she wore a grey suit with navy accessories and yellow spray orchids.

J. Darby Taylor acted as his brother's best man, and the ushers were Gilbert C. Goode, Jr., and James S. Kinwood of Birmingham.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Starr wore a toast colored wool suit with a beige flowered hat. Her corsage was made of gardenias.

Mrs. Taylor selected a navy and white suit with matching hat and also wore gardenias.

Following the ceremony there was a breakfast for family and relatives at the home of the bride's sister on Orchard road.

A three-piece beige and brown suit with brown accessories and an orchid corsage was Mrs. Taylor's going away outfit.

The young couple is motoring to St. Louis and will make their home in Birmingham after June 1.

Guests from out-of-town included the bride's sister, Mrs. Frank W. Bensecker of St. Simons Island, Ga.; James E. Starr, a brother, and Mrs. Barley Burns, grandmother of the bride, of Jackson, Mich.

Also from Jackson were Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Burns, Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Burns and Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Tallman.

bridemaids' dress of pale yellow dotted bodice.

First a bridesmaid, then a bride, is often the case. Certainly, New York designers are encouraging proposals with such sweetly eye-catching dresses as the bridesmaid's frock pictured today. Typical of many of the new spring and Summer styles for attendants, the dress has an allover air in its full gathered skirt, ruffled frills and hemline, and light pointed bodice.

Although in general this season's wedding dresses are floor length, bridesmaids' dresses are about equally divided between full and ankle length. Except for this difference, many are companion pieces, designed in the same summery fabrics, and even with the same short sleeves and open necklines.

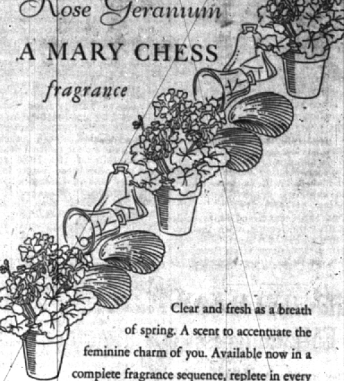

The mother of the bride, or, for that matter, the mother of the groom, will most likely wear either a pale grey or a light beige dress, street length or long as she prefers. Some of the loveliest are trimmed with lace dyed in the same tint and applied around the neckline and on the sleeves.
