Cranbrook School of Theatre Opens Seventh Season

Cranbrook Summer School of the Theatre will open its seventh season Monday, June 21, according to an announcement made today by Carl G. Wonnberger, founder and director of the school. As usual the Theatre School will operate for five mornings each week with afternoon swimming in the Cranbrook Jonah pools optional.

Instruction and rehearsals will take place outdoors in Cranbrook's Greek Theatre, dancing and body work will take place in Cranbrook Pavilion on Lane Pine road, there will be regular work in voice, pantomime, diction make-up and body-work will be given during the morning class periods. For students taking the course for school credit the term will be eight weeks.

Senior students, those of top high school grades and beyond, will take the regular course of six weeks with their full-length public performances coming during the week of August 2. The Junior and Intermediate groups, representing the younger students, will give their final performances on the afternoons of July 30-31.

According to the Director, there will be opportunity for the enrollment this year of about twenty new students. Total enrollment may never exceed eight students, and old students are given preference in their application. The school has been completely filled for the past three seasons. Six tuition scholarships in return for certain light maintenance chores are available to boys in the last two years of high school, as of their present school status.

Sally Genung Spoke Vows Friday at St. James Church

Before a candlelit altar decked with white stock and snapdragons, Sally Joan Genung, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lawrence Genung, spoke her marriage vows Friday evening in St. James Church, to William Franklin Porter, II, son of Dr. and Mrs. Horace W. Porter of Jackson. The Rev. Harold E. Towne read the marriage service.

The bride was attired in white satin fashioned princess style with a sweetheart neckline and dramatized at the shoulders with pearl beaded inserts. The bouffant skirt extended in a train.

A heart-shaped cap edged with braided satin held her fingertip veil of illusion. She carried white canelias and stephanotis.

Mrs. William Gallon, cousin of the bride from Western Springs, Ill., wore a gold beargalle gown made with a fitted basque and a full skirt with four paniers. She wore a pleated head dress of the same material as her gown and carried a basket of brown paniers.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. Maynard Zimmerman of East Lansing and Mrs. Fletcher Plant of Ann Arbor, wore the same gold colored gown and carried baskets of violets.

Veri Kutte of Jackson acted as Mr. Porter's best man, and seated the guests were: William Hanley of Bradford, Pa., Gordon Burrows, Charles W. Wacker, John Easting of Philadelphia and Robert Wilson of Detroit.

Mrs. Genung wore for her daughters' wedding a gown of dusty pink crepe with a matching feather hat. Her corsage was of lilacs.

Mrs. Porter chose a gold lame dress with a blue maline hat. A reception followed the ceremony.

Mrs. William F. Porter, II

at the Birmingham Country Club. For her going away costume Mrs. Porter chose an aqua gabardine suit over which she wore a cocoa brown coat and matching hat with alligator accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Porter will make their future home in Evanston, Ill.

MOMS Planning War Memorial for Vets

MOM's Club are planning to present to the Community a War Memorial bronze clock with a plaque and inscription and two suitable locations are under discussion, one the Municipal Building or the Community House.

The War Memorial Committee with Mrs. F. W. Niefendur as chairman, is sending out cards to all past and present members of Unit 3 of MOM's Club, telling of the project and asking for opinions on locations and whether an inside or outside clock is preferred and requesting contributions.

The regular monthly meeting has been changed from afternoon to evening, April 15.

At this meeting the War Memorial committee will discuss the memorial clock and location.

Any mother of sons who have recently gone into service is invited to attend and join the club.
