

Winter Driving No Hazard for Careful Motorist

Cooperating with national safety and law enforcement authorities, Birmingham police have listed driving rules that, if carefully considered, will prevent many motorists from being involved in accidents during the hazardous road conditions ahead. Scientific tests are behind all these simple precautionary measures. The safe-driving rules are:

When starting on ice or snow, get the "feet" of the road surface. Test brakes and acceleration only when clear of other cars.

Reduce speed on snowy or icy roads. Remember that these surfaces take from three to 12 times as much stopping distance as dry pavement.

Keep windows clear. Remove snow and ice from the windshield, and keep fog and frost from the inside. Test wipers and defrosters so that you may watch out for pedestrians and other traffic clearly.

Use Tire Chains
Never warm your car in a closed garage. Carbon monoxide fumes are poison and dangerous. Check floor boards, exhaust system and the heater for leaks. When streets are treacherous, use steel chains. They will reduce stopping distance from 40 to 70 per cent, and provide better "go" traction.

If possible, have tires with good treads. They will provide better stopping ability and improve traction. While nice and quiet they actually skid worse than bare tires.

Police warned motorists to remember that accidents in this area increase 24 to 53 per cent this time of the year. Don't be among those numbered in these figures. Be safe and be a happy motorist.
