Handkerchiefs Sent to England by Local Woman

Mrs. John N. Lacy of Birmingham, who is fast winning the title of "The Handkerchief Lady," asks if you have a few or even one spare handkerchief? Not necessarily a new one; any type, color or material will do, she says.

Like every day, they are badly needed in England where a hankie costs a precious clothing coupon. Cleaning items, which are bought here by the box at any drug store are non-existent in England.

Mrs. Lacy has two sisters—former Philadelphians—now married and living in England—Mrs. George Carrington, who lives just outside of Birmingham, England, and Mrs. Richard Laney of London. They will distribute the handkerchiefs where they are most needed.

Through the British War Relief, Mrs. Lacy has collected and sent over one thousand handkerchiefs to Great Britain. Many more are needed, she emphasizes. "Please put your name and address with your gift so the recipient may write you," Mrs. Lacy suggests.

Articles may be left at the Community House, the Knitting Shop on Maple, Key Bazaar, Wilson's Drug Store and the Bloomfield Market on Long Lake. Or they will be called for by Mrs. Lacy, Mrs. William McManus, or Mrs. L. Foster Barr are notified.

Discussion Groups to Meet Tuesdays

Mrs. Charles J. Shain, who for many years has headed the International Relations Class because of years of thinking along lines of World Peace, is looked upon locally by an authority on matters of world affairs.

Class study includes the Marshall Plan, International Trade Relations and a close following of the activities of the United Nations.

Mrs. R. W. Reilly, who has been most interested in International Girl Scouting and is president of the Girl Scout Council of Birmingham, is serving as moderator of the discussion which will continue each Tuesday at 10 a. m. through February at the Community House.
