

Cranbrook Student Wins Textile Award

Fabric designs intended for women's fashions, but so varied in scale and pattern that they resemble modern decorative prints, were announced as winners in the women's textile design contest sponsored by the Moss Rose Manufacturing Company of Philadelphia.

Joan Patterson of the Cranbrook Academy of Art was first prize of $500. Abstract geometric motifs won third and fourth prizes of $100 each for Lydia Woy and Joseph Bohrowicz, also of the Cranbrook Academy.

Prizes and honorable mentions were awarded to 10 students for designs selected from the 200 entries of 15 schools.
