Preparing for St. Dunstan's Play

Shown conferring on plans for the St. Dunstan's forthcoming production of "Jacobowsky and the Colonel", the S. N. Behrman-Werfel comedy, are Jervis B. McMechan, director, Mrs. Lewis C. Keenan, stage manager, and Miss Alice Sperry, assistant stage manager.

Two innovations will be featured in the production of the Behrman-Werfel comedy "Jacobowsky and the Colonel" which the St. Dunstan's players are going to present in four performances on June 17, 18, 19 and 20 at Cranbrook's Greek Theatre in Bloomfield Hills.

A tiny foreign car, loaned by James Booth of Gross Pointe which will figure prominently in the action of the play is one of the surprises. A little boat which will be moored in the pool to simulate a section of a French harbor is the other.

The play is the story of a government in exile, its problems and dilemmas. That "war makes strange bed-fellows" is vividly brought out in the clever characterizations of Jacobowsky, a lively little Polish refugee and his comrade of necessity, the aristocratic colonel.

The title roles will be portrayed by Jones B. Shannon and Thomas King. Mrs. John A. Edwards has the feminine lead.

The large cast, directed by Jervis McMechan, includes Weston Meyer, Rogers L. Marquis, Carl W. Neumann, Warren C. Moore, Harry D. Wray, Jr., James C. Nunneley, Edward A. Proctor, Henry S. Booth, W. P. Adams, Jr., Donald S. Bell, Maynard Andreae and Lewis C. Keenan. Others are Mrs. Robert Lee Graham, Mary Lou Stiffler, Mrs. Edward R. Chapman, Nellie Beveridge, Mrs. Robert T. Hatt, David Thompson and Master William Shannon.

A portion of the proceeds from the play will benefit the rehabilitation of St. Malo, France. All performances will begin at 8:00 p.m.
