In Philadelphia, The People Are Talking About:

(Special From Our Conventions Staff)
PHILADELPHIA—It's the political gossip and the little things that are the talk of the delegates at a convention that delegates talk about.

Here in convention-Philadelphia, they are saying:
"Have you heard that Taft's baby elephant from Texas was brought to its knees by the heat right in the middle of Broad street and the GOP elephant atop the Bellevue-Stratford hotel, collapsed to its knees for want of air?"

"That the press agent of radio commentator Henry Morgan, to boost the premier of his new movie, 'So This is New York' opened 'Tin' conventions headquarters. He is the only candidate who says he has none of the qualifications necessary."

Many Sevens
"Have you seen the solid gold eyeglasses of Clare Boothe Luce that hang around her neck on a skyblue halter?"

"That the official convention hostesses—Mrs. Washington Scranton of Scranton, Pa. (who was once warned by Republicans not to wear so many ornaments in the middle of a depression) gave a luncheon on a hotel roof minus coquette?"

Souvenirs are so many that American Airlines and Dewey headquarters are giving out shopping bags to hold them all.

"That the 238-pound cheese sent to Stausen from Monroe, Wisconsin, for his press conference was delivered to Dewey's headquarters by mistake."

Only Three Calls
When Senator Taft ordered several thousand copies of the sight-seeing booklet, "What to see in Philadelphia" he discovered a picture of rival Dewey on the cover.

Convention doctor has had only three calls to date.
