The Saratoga Chest

WHEN the young 17th Century Britisher started to take up law and enrolled as a student at the Inn of Court, it was customary for him to place in his apartment a small chest of drawers of traditional design. In this "bachelor's chest" would be stowed his routine belongings, as well as the scented mementoes of his romantic conquests! Quite typical is the SARATOGA chest in Adirondack Knotty Pine, in a pleasing hand-polished finish . . . as appropriate in the hall or living room as in the intimate quarters of a bachelor's bedroom.
