Phil Dibble Leaves for South America; to Spend Year There

Phil Dibble, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Dibble, 1100 W. Lincoln, left Monday on the first leg of a journey which will take him into nearly every section of South America. Traveling with Jim Alford of Detroit, Dibble will leave New Orleans on a Dutch freighter, and land in Venezuela, starting the journey over the west coast.

The two young men are planning to spend about a year there, and during that time they will take many pictures of the country as they find it. They are currently free-lance and have made practically no plans for their trip. In sections they like, and which seem favorable, they will seek temporary work. Their main idea is to live with the people of South America, and find out as much about the country as possible through their contacts with "the common man."

Phil was graduated from Baldwin High School and Duke University. He had been employed as an assistant buyer for a Detroit department store and resigned that position to leave on his journey.
