

THE APPLE ORCHARD SCHOOL

is accepting enrollments for the 1948-49 school year. Its unusual musical training offered very young boys and girls is most desirable, giving them remarkable poise and gracefulness and a happy attitude toward life and others about them.

Children from 2 years to kindergarten age may be enrolled for one or more mornings a week. Tuition $7.50 and up per month. Classes start September 7.

The SCORE PAD

By Jim Gray
(Sense and nonsense at the bridge table. Other settings.)

Thank you very much ladies and gentlemen you are very generous with your applause this evening. After a temporary sojourn in Bermuda, we continue with our reminiscences.

A fortnight back I wandered down a cubbyway corridor of memory and drew up short at a pigeonhole which contained the vestiges of a zany review with music, circa 1927 or thereabouts. Its title, its music, its actors and its actresses, I remember not.

However, I did set forth in this column my recollection of one of its amusing interludes, a blackout skit entitled "An American's Idea of English Home Life". This skit involved a game of bridge of sorts. (My apologies to the unknown librettist for any unintentional inaccuracies in my version.) With your permission, reader, I depart now from the subject of bridge to give you a recollection of the corollary bit of buffoonery, "An Englishman's Idea of American Home Life".

The scene: The settin' room of Tex S. Hart, the greatest secretary of a Rotary Club since Aloysius P. McGlinch, and the boy plunger of Main street. Tex is discovered practicing quick draws with his six-guns. His wife, Toots S. Hart, is settin' on the sofa oiling her revolvers.

TEX (taking two quick shots at a target on the far wall): "Aw, Toots honey, you ain't really and gone leave old Tex, air you?"

TOOTS: "Sure am. You and me is quits, Tex. I'm pullin' my freight soon as I get these here shootin' horns oiled up."

(Al Smith enters and turns on the "radio". He leaves.)

TEX: "Is they another man, Toots honey?"

TOOTS: "Sure is." (She stands and fixes past Tex's ear at the target.)

TEX (turning his back to the target and firing over his shoulder): "Meanin' Zeke Perkins, Toots honey?"

TOOTS: "Sure do."

TEX (turning his back to the target and firing over his shoulder): "Meanin' Zeke Perkins, Toots honey?"

TOOTS: "Sure do."

old Tex don't mean it. You can't be in love with that spavin-legged, boss thing!"

TOOTS (turning her back to the target, stooping and shooting between her legs): "Sure can." (An auto sounds off-stage.) "That's him now. Well, so long, Tex. Take keer of yourself." (She leaves.)

(Tex runs to the window holding his guns high. He stands well back from the frame on one side. Then he carefully parts the curtain with the muzzle of one gun and peers out. A car door slams. Tex sighs. Then he thrusts the guns into their holsters and hurries across the room to the telephone. He gives the operator a number. An instant later...)

TEX (into the telephone): "Is that you, baby? It's me, Tex. Come on over. She's gone."

Virginia Hood One Step Away from Highest Rifle Award

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Virginia E. Hood, 18, of 975 Fairfax, Birmingham, Mich., won the Expert Rifleman's Medal in her first shooting for the United States.

Young Miss Hood first took up the target sport four years ago. She has climbed steadily through the 13 lower rankings and needs only one more to reach the top drawer of the junior shooters—the Distinguished Rifleman's Medal.

Young Virginia is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Hood. She is a graduate of Baldwin High School.
