Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane Women's Travel Authority

Next to your home, your automobile, probably represents the largest single investment of your family—and, like any important investment, it should be protected.

(1) If you have a garage, never leave the car out overnight. Over a period of years a sheltered car will show far less wear and tear than one exposed to the weather.

(2) Treat your engine with respect. Always let the engine warm up a minute or two before driving off; always start in low gear, not in second.

(3) Be sensible about speed. Excessive speed is hard on your car, especially if it is old. And at 60 miles per hour you get far less gasoline mileage than at a more reasonable 40 miles per hour.

(4) The majority of accidents, from dented fenders to total wrecks, could have been avoided. Obey every traffic regulation and make it a standing rule to give the other fellow the right of way.

(5) Some service stations offer through check-up jobs, free, when your car is lubricated every 1,000 miles. Take advantage of this service because a minor repair or adjustment now may prevent an accident or heavy repair bill later.

These simple rules will more than double the dividends on your car investment.
