

Builder to Resume Construction of Home

The builder of a partially constructed home on Golfview Blvd. has agreed to resume immediate operation on the dwelling. City Manager Donald C. Egbert informed the city commission Monday evening.

Neighbors had complained that the basement and partial superstructure constituted an attractive hazard for neighborhood children. The commission's attention was also called to a low spot on a lot on east side of Stanley Blvd. Nearby residents said it often fills with two or more feet of water and is a dangerous area for young children.

Horton Smith Leads Qualifying Rounds for PGA Tourney; Sam Byrd Is Second

Orchard Lake Country Club's tough terrain proved a hard test of golf to the 29 golf pros who played their qualifying rounds there last Monday for the PGA tournament to be held in Richmond, Va., in June. Michigan is allotted 6 places in the big show and Horton Smith of Detroit Golf Club led the pack to become low medalist in the qualifying. His total of 141 included the only sub-par round, a 69 in the afternoon.

Behind him came Sam Byrd with rounds of 73-72 for a 145 total and then Jim Johnson of Glen Oaks with 147. Eldon Briggs of Saginaw country club was the only out-state pro to make the grade as he banged out rounds of 73-76 for 149. This score was duplicated by Eric Rutan of Lockmore. This quieted along with Chas. Harbert of Meadowbrook, who was exempt from qualifying, will make up the Michigan contingent in the tournament. Al Watrous of Oakland Hills missed qualifying by one stroke. Other Birmingham area pros who played Monday were Lou Powers of Tam O'Shanter who had 151 for the two rounds, Bill Graham of Bloomfield Hills with 153, Ray Maguire of Birmingham Country Club with 155. Tom Shannon, the home pro, found the familiar layout rough for 155, also. Larry Pintok of Bloomfield Hills had 163.

Next Monday afternoon the first pro-amateur will be played in the Detroit district. Franklin Hills Country Club will be the host. Wally Burkeno is the new Franklin Hills pro. He was an assistant at Oakland Hills last season.

City Discourages Use of Crankcase Oil on Streets

The city didn't put the road oil on the north half of Hemletts between 14 Mile and Lincoln. The city commission made this clear Monday evening to residents in the south half of that section of street. Several representatives asked commissioners why the city hadn't continued over the south half Monday.

"The city didn't do this oiling; it must have been a private contractor paid by the residents along the north half," City Commissioner Milton F. Mallender explained. "The city won't put down its heavy asphalt oil till sometime in June when ground temperatures are high enough. In fact, the crankcase oil makes it difficult for the asphaltic oil to be properly applied, and may result in a poor final job. That is why the city attempts to discourage crankcase oil on streets where asphaltic oil is scheduled."

U.N. Orange Crate Theater Will Tour Elementary Schools

Tuesday afternoon Paul Carter, principal of Adams School, met with the teachers of elementary grades to detail the showing of the presentation watercolor picture story, written and drawn by Mrs. E. W. Gaffill. Mrs. Gaffill has just completed the drawings which will expand the UN story previously given to the Girl Scouts to include all elementary grade pupils.

As now planned, this picture presentation of the United Nations will be shown to all of the first six grades of Adams, Pierce and Quaton Schools in Birmingham; Walnut Lake, Bloomfield Village and Franklin.

Mrs. William Jackson, chairman of the League of Women Voters education committee, Mrs. Harvey J. Forest of that committee, and Mrs. E. J. Barney of the Girl Scout council will assist Mrs. Gaffill.

United Nations Visit Impresses Baldwin Students

By Pete Hartnett and Tim Reed

Among all the shrines and monuments in Washington and New York, most of which are dedicated to men and events of past ages, perhaps the greatest living symbol of the modern world is the United Nations organization at Lake Success in New York. It is the only monument dedicated to the preservation of world peace and human rights, the basis of a united world and deeper understanding between nations.

When the 1949 Washington group from Baldwin high school visited the UN headquarters at Lake Success, members were presented with a fuller understanding of the administration and operation of the committee system and the central organization. The group saw and reviewed the pertinent questions of the day that present problems to the world's security.

The main group was subdivided into smaller units and taken into seven separate committee sessions. Under discussion in the first committee room was the Cardinal Mindszenty trial.

Hear Delegates Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt represented the United States on the Cultural and Scientific committee. The problem of administration of the United Nations was also under discussion by the UN delegates. Perhaps the most interesting aspect of these committee sessions was the translation of the speakers words into five working languages of the UN. For this purpose two linguists in charge of each language were stationed in compartments along one side of the committee room. For the transmission of the voice, headphones were placed at intervals of every seat and the speaker could listen to any one of the official UN languages—English, Chinese, French and Spanish.

When the group left, the UN after an entertaining day, there was a sense of having seen more than anyone had expected—a powerful world organ. Having already studied the UN rather thoroughly, the group was greatly impressed to see it in actual operation. It will remain firmly fixed in the minds of those who visited it as a monument to the present world and a hope for the future.

Jim Buchanan Wins Essay Contest; Will Attend Boys' State

Jim Buchanan, 940 Henrietta, won the Kiwanis-sponsored essay contest with his article of "Birmingham As I Would Like to See It," according to an announcement made by Tom Ward, local president of the American Legion in sponsoring the contest. The winner of which will be given an opportunity to attend the Wolverine Boys' Conference in Lansing on June 24.

Jim is 16, a junior at Baldwin high school. In addition to his work on the essay, Judges Ed Pugh, Ernest Miller and Clarence Globet selected him for his leadership, alertness, enthusiasm, personality, honesty and good sportsmanship. He will be one of 150 boys who will attend the conference for a week's actual experience in state government.

He was presented his acceptance papers at the regular meeting of the Birmingham Kiwanis club last Tuesday evening.
