St. Dunstan's Chapel Scene Of McLintock-Warner Rites

Saturday afternoon in St. Dunstan's Chapel, Christ Church Cranbrook; Miss Sally Warner and Bruce James McLintock, two were united in marriage by the Rev. Lawrence W. Pearson, Mr.

Mrs. Bruce McLintock and Mrs. William M. Warner of North Glenhurst drive are the bride's parents.

For her wedding Miss Warner wore a street length gown of can-didant satin in a muted beige shade. The gown featured scalloped satin trimming on the bodice and a high necked yoke of chintilly lace. Lace was also used for the cap sleeves and long mitts which came to points over her hands. Completing her ensemble was a satin halo with a pleated brim which was adorned with a spray of satin roses on one side and carried a bouquet of white roses centered with an orchid and garnished with baby mums on satin streamers.

As the bride's only attendant, Miss Charis Mochel of Hamburg, Mich., was in an aqua crepe and lace dress of street length. Her accessories were brown and her flowers were white roses and flowers served as best man and seat-baby mums.

Bruce Andrews, Jr., of Ham-burg the guests were William M. Warner, Jr. a brother of the bride, and Robert Hood of Ham-burg.

Mr. Warner wore a pastel blue crepe gown with a jewelry neck-line highlighted with gold beads and silver beading for the occasion. Her hat was of matching crepe with a blue plume and her corsage was made up of pink rhubarb lilies. Since the bride-groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Greenawald of Billings, Mont., were unable to be present, his aunt, Mrs. William Gorsline of Pontiac represented the family.

She was wearing a navy blue en-semble with a corsage of gardenias and pink lilies.

Following a reception at the Warner home, the couple left on wedding trip to Hot Springs, Ark. For traveling the new Mrs. McLintock wore a navy blue and white ensemble which was fashioned with a sweet-heart neckline and a ruffled, tiered skirt.

Upon their return, they will make their home on Whitmore road, Detroit.
