Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bilby To Reside in Grand Rapids

Following their wedding reception at the Orchard Lake Country Club, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Richard Bilby left on a trip to northern Canada. For traveling, Mrs. Bilby, the former Janet Durant Zinser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clay M. Zinser of Michigan drive, wore a chocolate brown gabardine suit with matching accessories.

The couple were married Saturday at 4:30 o'clock in Christ Church Cranbrook by the Rev. Lawrence W. Pearson. Carrying a bouquet of white Queen daisies and trailing ivy, the bride was escorted down the aisle by her father. Her dress of white satin featured a chantly lace bodice ending in points on the low neckline and an off-shoulder neckline of lace applied to the illusion yoke. Her finger ring length veil of heliotrop rose-pointe lace and illusion was held by a dainty cape.

As maid of honor, Miss Jane Dodds of Birmingham was gowned in embroidered white organza set over pale blue taffeta with a matching blue sash and the off-shoulder neckline was outlined with folds of embroidered organza. She carried a natural straw basket handed with a blue taffeta ribbon and filled with blue delphinium, yellow and white Queen daisies and ivy. On her head was a natural straw poke bonnet trimmed with blue taffeta streamers.

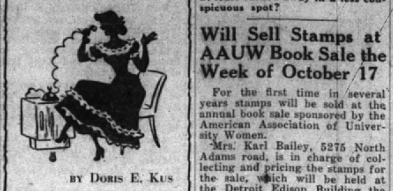

The bridesmaids, Miss Nan Gilbreath, Miss Dorothy Scott and Miss Pat Daly of Birmingham and Mrs. Frank Sink, Jr., of Detroit were in white organza over yellow taffeta dresses of the same fashion as the honor maid's, and with similar hats, flower baskets.

Mr. Bilby, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Bilby of Grand Rapids, Mich., had as his best man, John Ripelle of Ann Arbor. Ushering were David Bilby, a brother of the bridegroom; Jack Zinser, a brother of the bride; Ernest L. Peterson of Grand Rapids; William Sepanik, also of Grand Rapids; and James Weldon of Ann Arbor.

The Line Is Busy

There is something very sinister about "From the beginning I've sniffed a faint reactionary odor about everything. And now it's out! A recital to the popularity of such ditties as "Puddin' Madeline Home" and "Five Foot Two" as well as the jolly-good-fellow comedy musically singing to the accompaniment of a giddy banjo led off the procession. A procession, which rather than marching forward, has taken a sharp turn and headed smack dab back into the Roaring Twenties.

Now as far as my friends and I are concerned, we've never heard but a slight peep out of that reputedly raucous and naughty age, being more inclined at that time towards the details of a Mother Goose story than the speaky and the Charleston. Nevertheless, to read and to hear about the "good old days" may even to take an old picture album and glance over the photographs is always fascinating and fun if not hilarious.

That was because it was all past performance. Our days of chuckles are now over. Popular music has already bowed and fashions are definitely rumored as leaning a mile towards the raccoon coat and blazer era. For that matter, the raccoon coat is definitely back "in." And to carry on from there, waitlines have dropped just a little and skirts which now show more of the leg than last year feature one-familiar accordion pleats. Cloche hats are to be worn over shortly bobbed hair and ropes of pearls which are extra long a title and skirts which now show more of the leg than last year feature one-familiar accordion pleats. Cloche hats are to be worn over shortly bobbed hair and ropes of pearls which are extra long a title and skirts which now show more of the leg than last year feature one-familiar accordion pleats.

But don't start frothing at the mouth yet. The idea is to take these "Era of Wonderful Non-sense" fashion highlights and make them into the theme of today's sartorial preference. All modified and streamlined, of course, so that just the "catchy" fads are employed. It's just as it was with the New Look. We've been back even farther than for the wasp waist and ankle length hem.

It just seems to be a matter of lack of ingenuity. There are no original ideas anymore or if some one does have a brainstorm, it's too "stagey" and fussy for the average Miss or Mrs. U. S. A. Maybe it's either that people are getting awfully tired of becoming more and more civilized or such divisions as the fashion fanciers just want to keep the lady of the
