Bits of Birmingham

Although Thanksgiving was observed a week ago, this Wanderer doesn't believe it is too late to print a Thanksgiving poem that the 53 youngsters in Quarton school's fourth grade cooperatively wrote. Acting as emissary for this class, Mrs. Hope Linstroth was 8-year-old Molly Marshall, 812 Pilgrim. After about an hour's work, the class came up with this verse:

"I am thankful a help to be
"To those poor ones that I see.
"I am thankful all the time
"For home and family that are mine.
"I am thankful for our country free;
"For all the good that comes to me.
"I am thankful every day
"For my work and for my play.
"I am thankful the whole year through
"Because God loves me and loves you, too."

In an effort to save the man from embarrassment and this Wanderer will not mention any names. However, in the vicinity of Birmingham there dwells a man who raises turkeys. Last week, he and his crew picked and cleaned many hundreds of the birds, ready for the Thanksgiving market. Declaring a holiday from his store, the gentleman took himself off to a party at his club and—you guessed it—he won turkeys, six of 'em!

Announced Bill Phillipson, prize at The Eccentric, last week Tuesday: "Well, last night I attended the Metropolitan Opera performance of a piece sung in German." To which this Wanderer asked: "How did you like it, Bill?" Quickly he replied: "Well, it would have been a lot better if they'd put Milton Berle in the cast. They didn't, so I turned my television set to a good wrestling match."

A hunting they will go . . . Up at Tawas City, Harold Latham, 628 Bird, took first prize for the largest rack in the merchants' buck contest held there recently for his 11 point buck. Fifteen-year-old Clarence Dorey, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Dorey of Martin street, let his Dad get a head start and still was the first in the family to bag a deer. Pop was up the first day but his son went up on Friday evening and by 8:30 the next morning was back with his game. The elder Dorey, to date, hasn't had any luck at all.

We hate to mention it but it snowed last week. Thanksgiving Day was a dilly, and while parents moaned and groaned about the weather the Small Fry had a wonderful time. Checks and noses knew very red while snow suits and shovels took a terrible beating. Not a few of the local youngsters nagged their parents out of their retirement. Perhaps the most noticeable was the way snow men and forts popped up like mushroom all over town. This Wanderer, out after a few pictures Saturday afternoon, even saw a huge snow dog gnawing one front lawn. Nice piece of work, too.

A local citizen asked this Wanderer Monday: "Why doesn't the city remove the snow from the sidewalks around Baldwin Public Library? I'd hate to fall down with a load of heavy reading matter under my arm."

During the past week Birmingham, and much of Michigan, has been going through a spinning period. This means, of course, that the heavy snowfall has caused many extra spinners of the rear tires of motor cars as their drivers tried to get out of driveways and streets. This past week has brought to Birmingham the heaviest early fall of snow in many years.

Cadillac-Pontiac Dealership Here Goes to Wilsons

Charles E. Wilson, Jr., and Edward E. Wilson, today took over the Cadillac-Pontiac dealership in Birmingham. They will continue the business at its present location, 272 North Woodward.

They plan several future additions to the business, the first of which will be the opening of a paint and bump shop. The service department is being completely repaired, ready for the opening today.

Future changes will bring increases to the staff, which for the present remains the same, including the sales force, Larry Rouden, who has been with the company as service salesman, has been made head of the service department.

The new owners say they plan to offer Cadillac and Pontiac owners in Birmingham superior and courteous service. They will also provide complete servicing for all makes of cars.

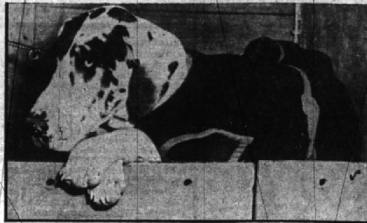

They have been residents of this area for about 20 years, and were former students at Cranbrook. Charles E. Wilson, Jr., now a resident of Bloomfield Village, is married and the father of one child. He served three years with the Marine Corps. His brother, whose residence is in Oxford, has four children.

They are the sons of C. E. Wilson, president of General Motors corporation.

Birmingham Invites You to a Christmas Prevue

The fine shops and distinguished business establishments of Birmingham cordially invite you to attend a Christmas Prevue Monday Evening, December 5th, from 7 until 10 p.m.

The entire town in its Christmas finery will welcome you with open doors. No sales will be made and you may leisurely inspect more than ten million dollars in Christmas merchandise assembled to meet completely the discriminating needs of the exacting clientele served by Birmingham merchants.

Music and decorations—plus the indefinable spirit of Yuletide in the suburbs—will help put you in a mood to view appreciatively the most concentrated display of fine merchandise Westward of the Atlantic seaboard. Nowhere, we believe, will you find so many things to intrigue and satisfy your Christmas generosity—with such little effort and in such pleasant surroundings.

May we expect you then?
Monday Evening, December 5th, beginning at seven?
