

PNCE, so long ago, the bright star of Bethlehem led wise men across the cool desert to worship at the manger of the Prince of Peace . . . Bowed in adoration, they laid their precious gifts at the feet of Him who was to show Mankind the way of love and peace . . . May we, too, as we make our gifts this Christmastime to those we love, remember the tradition we carry on . . . We pray to Him, who gave us His son on this bright morn, that we may be given the wisdom to follow in His steps, that we may be one who will do his best to bring peace and love into the hearts of all we meet . . . And as each Merry Christmas rings in our ears, may we be given the wisdom and grace to continuously emulate the Man whose birthday we celebrate on this day.
