mony in Christ Church Cranbrook on July 9. The candlelight rites were read by the Rev. Robert I. DeWitt.

Given in marriage by her father, Charles Cow L'Honnemieu, the bride's illusion veil of fingertip length was held by a cap of illusion edged with lace. Her gown was of white alencon lace and was fashioned with a low round neckline which was bordered with a lace ruffle, short sleeves and a bouffant skirt. Lace mitts came to points over her wrists.

Attending Miss L'Honnemieu in a printed white organza over pale green taffeta was Mrs. George D. Taylor of Ann Arbor, the matron of honor. Her dress featured a cape with a small round collar, a full skirt and a wide sash of green taffet. On her head she wore a halo of organza over green and in her arms were white iris and white larkspur highlighted with ivy trails. The bridesmaids, in identical gowns and carrying similar bouquets, were Miss Anne L'Honnemieu, a sister of the bride and Mrs. Eujen B. Meader of East Saukatuck, L. I. Serving as best man was Richard D. Jenkinson, Jr., of Pittsburgh, Pa. and ushering the guests to their places were Alan R. Hopkins and Charles D. Fiske, Jr., of Birmingham; Dr. George Taylor of Ann Arbor and Heber Harper of Pittsburgh.

For the wedding and reception which followed at the Detroit Boat Club, Mrs. L'Honnemieu wore a champagne toned crepe gown with a matching tulle hat which featured a pink moss rose trim and a corsage of pink roses. The bridegroom's mother was in a French blue crepe and lace dress with a matching blue lace hat. She pinned a lavender orchid to her shoulder.

For traveling to northern Canada, the new Mrs. Sellers selected a toast colored linen and shantung dress with a bolero styled linen jacket and white accessories.

Upon their return, the couple will make their home at 480 Madison.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Eujen B. Meader of Long Island; Mrs. Edward Duff Murray of Seattle; Mr. and Mrs. Ross Holmes and their daughter, Deborah of Pelham, N. Y., aunt and uncle of the bride; Mrs. George M. Cowan of Westfield, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Jenkinson, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Fleming, Mr. and Mrs. R. L.
