Its Life-Span Has Never Been Measured!

White sidewall tires available at additional cost.

Now and then, a person who is about to take delivery of a new Cadillac inquires as to the period of time he may logically anticipate using it.

Our answer is that we do not know—for the life-span of a Cadillac car has never been accurately measured.

There is evidence in abundance that, with proper care and reasonable usage, the life of a Cadillac is far beyond all normal requirements.

Recently, for instance, four Cadillacs of the 1942 series were retired from the testing fleet of one of the great tire manufacturers. The four of them had traveled a total of 2,599,413 miles, averaging almost 650,000 miles per car. None of them was retired for disability. Each went into general service after leaving the testing fleet.

Yes—you can look forward, when you buy a Cadillac, to almost any period of ownership you may eventually desire.

But, of course, the endurance of a Cadillac is only half the story. The manner in which the car performs is equally vital to the owner's satisfaction.

Not only can you keep a Cadillac for a long, long time—but your enjoyment of it will endure throughout the years.
