

Improvement Assn. Will Dine Saturday

By Dorothy Kelly
BEVERLY HILLS—The Greenfield Beverly Hills Improvement Association will hold its annual dinner Saturday in the Community House at 6:30 p.m. Al Joldersma, Jim Zawadon, and Ken Hoover have been the key men making arrangements for the dinner and entertainment. Ken Hoover, who had charge of the evening event, announced that Mr. Simons, manager of the Royal Oak Grill and Bro. store, will play dinner music. The Birmingham Male Chorus, under the direction of Otto Brown, accompanied by Dr. Shoenfeld, will sing. Torey Southwick a pantomime artist and magician, will also appear. Al Joldersma is in charge of ticket sales.

Great Books Clubs Need New Leaders As Lists Increase

New classes for leaders in the Great Books program are opening in Detroit on Nov. 17. This announcement was made this week by Miss Jeanne Lloyd of Baldwin Library. She added that local persons wishing to enroll may contact the local library for applications and information. The program of Great Books is entering its second year in Birmingham. Many who enrolled last year are continuing the bi-monthly discussion periods and several new members have enrolled. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Blunt, 1231 Cedar, members last year, said they considered the program one of the finest things that had come into the field of adult education.

Meet 'Old Masters'

"It brings such a close connection between the past and the present," Mrs. Blunt said. "We are reading books for pleasure which we once read because a teacher told us to. We are finding out that the problems which faced men centuries ago are not far removed from ours. Further than that, we are getting acquainted with the 'old masters' of literature. Through discussion, after reading, we are finding out what our neighbors think of their works. I could talk all day and not praise it enough."

Miss Lloyd said that from her experiences here and what she has read from other communities, adults who really think are enjoying the program for the mental stimulation it gives them. "They are reading these books, knowing that within a few days they are going to talk about them with a group of diversified persons. It puts a different slant on their reading. They watch for certain bits which they can talk about. They are more alert for the true meaning of the author's words. They read eagerly, to learn, not just to pass the time. Of course, these meetings do not appeal to everyone, any more than any other form of recreation. A person must enjoy reading and lively argument in order to get much from them. Each group has a few drop out soon after it is formed. Those who remain, stay on because they really want to." She added that enrollment may still be made by local persons who feel they would enjoy the program. Further information can be obtained at the library.

Forsyth Attending Ad Conference

Deer Hunters Can Register for Messages

This year as in the past the Michigan State Police and the State Department of Conservation will cooperate in making available a free registration service for all deer hunters who desire to be reached in camp in the event of an emergency. Hunters desiring to use this service should register at the State Police post or Conservation headquarters nearest their camp. They should also leave word at home of the station at which they will register. If an emergency occurs there at home need only call their nearest State Police post or Conservation headquarters. The message will then be sent by radio to the proper registration station and will be delivered from there by an officer of either department. Urgent Messages Only The registration also makes it easier to inform persons at home if a hunter meets with an accident or is reported lost. Only urgent messages will be handled and the service will not be offered where regular communication facilities can be used without delay. Registration cards have been distributed to all State Police posts and Conservation headquarters. They will also be available on State ferries and may be handed to State Police Officers stationed on the docks. In the past thousands of hunters have used the service and many messages have been delivered.
