 schools carried a photograph taken by Richard Coutts of Colerain school. The picture was entitled "Killed Drummer". Colerain is located in Troy township, a short distance south of Rochester.
 Youngsters on their way home from school last Thursday afternoon excitedly gathered around one of the power shovels being used in the construction of the new W. Maple bridge over the Rouge. The shovel had been working sideways on a gentle slope, and the operator was pulling in a heavy bucketful of wet clay. The load was just enough to make the downhill track dig into the topsoil far enough that the shovel tipped over on its side.

Trouble ran double at the police station Tuesday, Nov. 8. Two residents phoned in to say their mail boxes had been stolen. Both were made of wood and painted white, and had the house number painted on. One call came from Watkins and the other from Townsend. The second batch of double trouble had to do with magazine sellers. Two men were working the Washington boulevard while the other came from West street. Oh well, an old expression says "trouble breeds trouble."

By THE KINCAIDS

Every year about this time many folks suddenly realize Christmas is no more than a whop and a hollop and a boller and that ringing noise in their ears is the approaching sound of sleighbells. Just in case you're still spending your spare time thumbing through the summer's vacation pictures, we thought it might be wise to tip you off that the Yuletide is coming in. Now's the time to be smarter than a college-bred fox and get the jump on the rest of the shoppers. Do your shopping now and save your nerves from a last minute sandpapering. The Jewelry counter gets kind of crowded around Christmas Eve.

MONDAY EVENING, DEC. 5 7-10 P.M.

CHRISTMAS PRE-VUE

—Come One — Come All—
 We just read that the sale of Christmas decorations at a church fair in Granby, Conn., will be handled by Miss Ever Green. That's a perfect choice.
 Well . . . here it is getting along toward Thanksgiving time again . . . which reminds us to wish you a perfect day . . . and to send along a special thank you to all our friends and customers. We have a lot to be thankful for. And we hope you do too. THE KINCAIDS, 213 East Maple Ave. Phone 301.

Tragedy Averted

Serious consequences that could have resulted from a severed artery were averted by the presence of mind of the assistant Scoutmaster, Dave Martin, who immediately applied a tourniquet to the right arm of Arlie Latham.

At the close of the Scout meeting Tuesday evening, the boys were pushing each other on their way out of the building. Arlie put out his arm to beat himself and thrust it through a plate glass window. Dave snatched a cord from a venetian blind and tied it on Arlie's arm to stop the bleeding. Another Scout held the tourniquet while Dave rushed to the telephone to call a doctor and notify Arlie's parents.

In front of Claude Whitmer's office, the car broke down. Dave ran into the office, where a meeting was being held, to borrow another car and Donald Benway offered his services. The rest of the trip was made rapidly and safely. Three stitches were needed in the arm after sewing the artery.

Mothers Are Guests

Mothers of the Brownies and Girl Scouts were guests at the investiture ceremony held Tuesday afternoon at the school. Invited Brownies were Sharon Gibson, Karen Maddren, Jill Morton, Karen Rickard, Kay Graber, Sara Sweet and Elizabeth Schuele. Scouts Beatrice Snyder and Sally Williams also attended.

Scouts acted as hostesses and served cookies and cocoa. They prepared the refreshments themselves and received credit toward Scout advancement. The cookies were made on Monday at the home of their leader, Mrs. Edson Stevens. Clever table decorations of miniature Brownies and Scouts and paper vegetables made by the Scouts were used as a centerpiece.

School News

A store project is being carried on in the kindergarten room at the school on Park the teacher, Miss Marjorie Votey, and two of the mothers, Mrs. Elwood Sechrist and Mrs. Henry Wildeman, took the children to visit a big store on Woodward avenue. The children returned to their classroom full of new ideas for their own store. First and second grade children, at their part in the conservation unit, have taken up the task of raking in leaves from the school grounds and carrying them to the wild flower garden planted last year. Many baskets were put into use and baskets filled. The garden is now covered with a blanket of leaves ready for the winter's snow.

Mike and Ike Change

A radical change is reported on "Mike" and "Ike", the white rats in the fifth and sixth grade room. These brother rats were born Sept. 26, and were brought to the school when they were 30 days old. Since rats mature about 30 times as rapidly as man, the rats then could be compared to a three-year-old child and he was allowed to have candy and pop.

The first week the change was not noticeable. Now at the end of the second week Ike weighs 134, is scraggly in appearance and his tail is scaly. Brother Mike on his proper diet is quite the handsome fellow, silky and glossy with bright, shining eyes.

The project has been very effective. The youngsters have taken good care of their pets and now both rats will be fed properly so that Ike can catch up with his brother rat.

Indian Display

On display in the same room is an Indian project correlating the music and art classes. These projects were viewed by the parents attending the Open House held Monday evening at the PTA.
