Joan E. Fox

Miss Joan E. Fox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Fox of Linden road, has completed her training and is now a stewardess for American Airlines flying the company's DC-4 and Convair Flagships out of Chicago.

Miss Fox attended Kingswood school, Cranbrook, Bloomfield Hills, and Wellesley College where she received her bachelor of arts degree in the history of art. During her summer vacations she did office work at Birmingham, Pontiac, and Lapeer airports. She holds a private pilot's license.

Prior to receiving her silver wings, she attended a four-week training course at American's flight operations in Chicago where she learned the fundamentals of theory of flight, meteorology, flight operations, airline schedules and radio.

School Secretaries Hold Annual Fall Meeting Tomorrow

School secretaries of Oakland and Macomb counties will hold their annual fall institute meeting at the Royal Oak high school tomorrow, Oct. 21. The all day meeting has been planned with Mrs. Edith Doench of Pontiac as guest speaker. The institute will be held at the Carousal. In the afternoon the secretaries will participate in a conducted tour through the Michigan Bell Telephone Company for a first hand view of the new dial system.

All school secretaries are urged to attend, especially those who have not done so before. The purpose of the association is strictly of a professional nature and its aim to elevate the standards of the group and through organization to pool their ideas and ideals toward a finer and more efficient service to school and community. The program is always composed of carefully selected and educated lecturers.

The Line Is Busy

BY DORIS E. KUS

From the sublime to the ridiculous—that's perhaps what many a distinguished soul is mastering self-wise these days. For sure, it's the phrase which is being used by the average man with an applicable tree. Oak tree or one hundred trees, it's all the same this year. There just as happens that "hemp-crow" has been tagged alongside the name of apple.

As with a goodly number of you, I'm speaking now from personal experience, since a very spare night hour has been dedicated to the purpose of doing something about those darned red things on the trees, since scarcely a day goes by without our shipping several crates off to friends far distant enough to be unable to protect themselves against our onslaught; hardly a weekend goes by but what, tottering on the top rung of a ladder, I show a hearty threat towards collecting some accident insurance.

Most assuredly, apples are a luscious, healthy fruit. Eat it from me to under-rate their succulent taste when inserted between two pieces of savory mellowed toast. However, the time has come to face the question which is: "What the heck is now?" Rather than just munch or use in everyday form, I hunted about for ways and means of varying the item.

For the toddling tots who do better chawin' a little apple than struggling with a whooper, a switch to blend, heat slowly until sugar is dissolved. Add one cup of 22 per cent cream or evaporated milk, in a large, heavy pan. Stir to blend, heat slowly until sugar is dissolved. Then boil briskly, stirring constantly. Add one cup more of the cream or milk slowly, keeping at a boil. Boil to 242 degrees on candy thermometer or to the firm ball stage, stirring constantly. Remove from heat, pour into a deeper pan for easier dipping and stick the apples, twisting quickly so they're coated evenly all over. Immerse them immediately in ice water and then stand on heavy waxed paper to set the taffy.

This, incidentally, is a lot of fun for grown-ups. Get a small gang in the kitchen and let them get at it. You'll find that they'll hint for a return engagement, for there's nothing an adult enjoys more than a simple return to being a kid again.

And to help keep their minds off the final sad score of Saturday's big game, here's a formula for making apple hors-d'oeuvres.
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 teaspoons sugar
2 tablespoons water
2 tart red apples
Slice of sharp cheese, 1/2 inch thick
1 stalk pascal celery
Combine lemon juice, sugar, water. Cut unpeeled apple into 1/2 inch cubes. Marinate in lemon mixture for an hour. Remove to drain. Cut cheese into 1/2 inch cubes and cut celery into 1/2 inch lengths. In each toothpick stick a cube of cheese, piece of apple and one of celery. Cover and store in refrigerator to keep moist and cold until ready to serve.

Bulb Donations Are Wanted; Are for Starr Commonwealth

At a meeting of the Birmingham branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association on Oct. 10 in the Community House, Mrs. J. C. Roberts asked for a donation of bulbs. These bulbs will be sent to the Starr Commonwealth for Boys in Albion and will be planted near the new chapel which is now being completed there.

Mrs. Roberts, chairman of this collection project, has announced that a box in which bulbs may be deposited has been set up in Bany's Florist Shop, 190 Willets. All bulbs should be identified as to type.

Mrs. Clyde Hagerman, chairman of the exhibits committee, announced the beginning of a flower arrangement class on Oct. 17 at 1:30 p.m. in the Public Library under the direction of Mrs. H. McKinney. These classes for members of the local garden group are to be held once a month.

Tell Engagement of Miss Joy Woolson

Miss Joy Woolson, daughter of Mrs. Lionel M. Woolson of Woodward road and the late Captain Woolson is making plans for a June wedding. Mrs. Woolson revealed her daughter's betrothal to Niel C. Talmage III, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Talmage, Jr., of Cranbrook. The news took a family dinner last Sunday.

The bride-elect was graduated from Baldwin high school and her fiancé is finishing his senior year at Wayne University.

Kendall-Fenton Vows Exchanged

The Botford Inn was the setting Friday for the marriage of Miss Barbara Jean Fenton, daughter of Mrs. Grace Fenton of Detroit and Robert Kendall, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Kendall of Dorchester road. The Rev. Ralph Claggett officiated at the five o'clock informal rites.

Given in marriage by her brother, the bride wore a beige gabardine dressmaker suit with brown accessories and a matching satin veiled cloche. Yellow roses made up her corsage.

A sister, Miss Janice Lee Fenton, as maid of honor wore a brown gabardine suit with shaded brown accessories and a corsage of tulleman roses.

Attending the bridegroom was a brother, Glen Kendall, and Bill DeMerritt of Detroit ushered the guests.

A family dinner followed the nuptials. Mrs. Fenton was wearing a soft blue wool suit dress with beige accessories and Mrs. Kendall was also in light blue. Her accessories were navy.

Following a wedding trip to Chicago, the couple will make their home in Port Huron.
