The nation's fantasy writers, the fellows who dream up weird stories about men from Mars and various other white stars along the stratospheric spaces are complaining that scientists are making them look like a bunch of chumps. Science is moving so fast the fictioneers can't keep pace with it. Truth is proving to be stranger than fiction... and if it continues the work, jugglers are going to have to go back to manual labor. With superonic speeds, rockets, underwater diving bells, atoms and flying discs, the fantasy writers can't type their talent to keep up with the parade. It's fantastic!

The Radio Workshop of Barham Junior High school is presenting its first stage show of the year, "These Cheers for Rodney," this (Thurs.) evening. The show will be a part of the regular P.T.A. meeting at its first full session. Many more productions are planned for the school term.

A Raleigh, N.C., bus driver had his first accident in 13 years when he bumped into the car his boss was driving. That's a perfect end to a perfect record.
