More Publications than any other printer in Michigan

As we grew from a small job printing plant, which was a tail to our basic anatomy of newspaper publishing, we found it rather easy in the early '30's to take an publication work.

An important part of this publication work was composition. With our own newspaper's linotype machines available for typesetting these publications, we became a "natival" for handling magazines, house organs and sales bulletins.

Added to the physical facilities was experience in an editor's problems. As a result we have attracted increasing business each year in this field. Taday we rank at the top in the number we produce each month among all Michigan printers.

We believe editors find our services more convenient, more belgful and more effective than most other printers. We also believe that the companies and groups these editors represent find us a dependable, economical and friendly source of printing service. We invite other editors and their administrative heads
