

H. L. Shibley Named Head of Indianapolis Public School System

Dr. Herman L. Shibley, who was superintendent of Birmingham schools during 1941-42, has accepted an appointment as superintendent of schools in Indianapolis, Ind.

After leaving Birmingham, Dr. Shibley became head of the Highland Park school system, which he leaves to take over his new duties Oct. 1.

He won much praise for his work in Birmingham. One of his main accomplishments was establishing the central junior high school system.

Prior to his administration, there were separate junior highs at Adams, Baldwin and Barnum.

Hungry deer when a field of beans or other vegetables sprayed with a newly created chemical compound. Consisting of two chemicals, the repellent has no bad effects on the vegetable and causes only a temporary palate irritation to the deer. Tested in a wild life refuge, it was found to be effective for as long as six months. One to three pounds mixed with water will spray an acre of crops.
