New Troy High School Expected to Be Ready For February Classes

Construction on the new $600,000 Troy township high school is now in progress and probably will be completed in time for second semester classes at the end of January, 1951, according to Stuart Baker, superintendent of schools.

The school, which is located on Livernois near Big Beaver road, will accommodate junior and senior school students, Big Beaver and Log Cabin schools, which have provided for high school grades, will become elementary schools.

THE TROY board of education has voted to have all seventh and eighth graders attend Log Cabin for half-day sessions starting this fall. All high school students will attend Big Beaver school on half-day shifts. Baker said that last year the school district sent about 150 high school students to other schools in Royal Oak, Rochester and Clawson. This year he expects only about 70 will be sent.

The board also specified that all ninth and tenth graders in the district must now attend local schools. Eleventh and 12th grade students who have been attending schools in other districts will be allowed to finish at those schools if they prefer.

The superintendent said original plans called for the new building to be completed by this December. He stated if everything goes according to schedule, the building should be ready for classes by the end of January.

THE SCHOOL will have 19 rooms besides the combined gymnasium-auditorium. Rooms will be music, cafeteria, art, science, biology, physics, library, study hall, home economics, shop and commercial. The building will also house board of education and administrative offices and the nurse's room.
